What, No Sales Tax?
The Baby, Invisible.
What Did Mussolini Mean?
—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.

DRIZZLING, FOGGY weather here. Many of the Washington "big bugs" are away. The small fry, not protected by civil service, are WONDERING. They would like to know what will happen after March 4th.

LINCOLN SITS safe inside his fine monument. Washington's white stone shaft points toward the sky and immortality. Their troubles are over.

You look up toward "the hill" where stands the big Capitol dome. Plenty of troubles under that, and problems and discords.

Where horses pull in different directions, the load does not move rapidly, and that is how our government horses pull. Perhaps it is all for the best in the best possible of worlds.

POSSIBLY some better plan could be devised, and necessity may force that better plan to the front.

RUMORS SAY the new President, Gov. Roosevelt, was "horrified" at the suggestion that he would support a sales tax. It is to be hoped the rumor is mistaken. If President Roosevelt prevents a sales tax he will be doubly "horrified" by the financial situation on his hands.

Not even a Roosevelt can balance a budget with hopes or wishes, and the country is running behind more than one hundred million dollars a month.

What will our intelligent and beloved country do when it is no longer possible for the Treasury to shovel out hundreds of millions to corporations that need the money?

INTERESTING family gathering in a South Carolina penitentiary. Mrs. Beatrice Snipes, condemned to death for killing a rural policeman, was allowed to see in the prison room her husband, serving a seven-months' sentence in connection with the same killing, and her seven-year-old boy. Several offered to adopt the boy, but she is giving him to an uncle.

Present also at the gathering, but not visible, was the child soon to be born to Mrs. Snipes in the penitentiary.

They will wait until that child is born before executing her. Justice did not always do that and is improving.

THE RICHMOND Times-Dispatch editor wonders what Mussolini meant when he said to Emil Ludwig:

"I do not believe a duce number two will ever come. If he should, Italy would not endure him."

The Richmond editor, assuming that Mussolini may last until 1945, inquires:

"After Mussolini, what?"

Similar important questions are, AFTER STALIN, OF RUSSIA, WHAT? AFTER MUSTAPHA KEMAL, OF TURKEY, WHAT? AFTER INDUSTRIAL FEUDALISM, HERE IN AMERICA, WHAT?

THE ANSWER to our home question, dependent upon no individual's life, will be postponed for a long time, a century or two at least.

It will be postponed many centuries, if the bosses of industrial feudalism are intelligent enough to keep labor well fed and contented, the union labor samurai exceedingly prosperous, AND, if they can invent a decent, efficient system of political government, instead of putting haphazard figureheads as ornaments on a thoroughly corrupt system of public service for private profit.

YOU WOULD like the flat lands of Florida through which the Seaboard Air Line train traveled yesterday on its "one night only" trip from Miami to New York. Enormous birds stand on one leg, contemplating the marshy scenery, their fellows fly overhead, slowly, lazily, flapping their wings.

One colored girl scoops up crabs in a hand net, another sits comfortably fishing in the brook. Colored members of the crew descend when the train stops, each buys three or four coconuts from colored boys, glad to take anything in payment. The buyers shake each coconut at his ear to make sure there is milk in it. Plenty of vitamins in that milk.

HUMAN BEINGS once lived in terror of comets. Church bells were rung, sermons were preached to keep the comet away. Now the Association for the Advancement of Science learns that a comet actually did hit the earth about one million years ago, striking South Carolina.

From an airplane you can see the "scars" made by the comet's head, 400 miles in diameter, bigger than the giant Halley Comet that visits us at regular intervals.

SCIENTISTS "comfort" you by saying that what happened in South Carolina, if it happened again, would probably kill millions of human beings, but would not "destroy our civilization." A considerable number of depressed dwellers in that civilization would not care much if it did.

A comet's head, instead of being merely flaming gas, as you probably thought, "is a loosely collected ball of meteors," made largely of solid iron. To be struck by such a ball, four hundred miles in diameter, would not be pleasant.

The one that came 1,000,000 years ago left numerous big

Studebaker Chauffeur Found Dead With Wife, Daughter

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—Discouraged because a newly-found will of Clement Studebaker had retracted an earlier bequest of $5,000, Paul Peterson, 55, chauffeur of the family today killed his wife and daughter and then committed suicide.

Before ending his life, Peterson telephoned his present employer, Clement Studebaker, Jr., and calmly told him of killing his wife and daughter. He said:

"Goodbye and good luck. I am going to follow my loved ones."

Studebaker immediately called police, who rushed to the fourth floor apartment of the Petersons. They found all three dead. Peterson's body lay beside that of his wife in the front bedroom.

Peterson arose early, police believe, and shot his 40-year-old wife while she slept. He then went to the bedroom of his daughter, Pauline, 20, a student at Northwestern University, and shot her while she was asleep.

Peterson was understood to be worried over financial matters. He was bequeathed $5,000 in an early will of Clement Studebaker, who died three weeks ago. But yesterday a second will was discovered which voided the first. The new will left the entire $2,000,000 estate of the wealthy utilities owner to the widow. The servants were ignored.

Operate for 50 Cents, Find $1 in Pet Dog

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Mike, a Boston bull terrier owned by James G. Veino, of this city, was operated on yesterday for the removal of a silver half dollar from his stomach, and the animal was found to be more valuable than his owner anticipated. Two half-dollars were found instead of the one which Mike was known to have swallowed recently. Reports from the veterinary hospital today said Mike's condition was satisfactory and he would be home in a few days.

Whitla's Funeral In Sharon Tomorrow

SHARON, Pa., Dec. 29.—Sharon is paying its last tribute to Attorney William Forker Whitla, 31, who as an 8-year-old boy gained nation-wide prominence as the "Willie" Whitla of the famous Whitla kidnaping case of 1909. He died yesterday at his home after a week's illness with pneumonia.

Funeral services will be held at the home tomorrow at 2 p. m., with the Rev. W. L. Wishart, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, in charge.

VIRGINIA DAWES

VIRGINIA DAWES TROTH MYSTERY

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—The Herald and Examiner today said there was considerable mystery about the matrimonial intentions of 18-year-old Virginia Dawes, adopted daughter of former Vice President Charles G. Dawes.

Report had it, the paper said, that Miss Dawes would visit Commander and Mrs. E. Hunter Tennant in Washington. She was formally reported engageed to their son, Ensign John Gardner Tennant last June.

But, the Herald and Examiner said, Mrs. Dawes gave denial to the report, declaring Virginia "was not going out of town over the holidays." She also made it clear, it was said, that she considered the engagement a thing of the past.

Some time ago Miss Dawes created a furore at Northwestern University, where she is a freshman, by wearing the fraternity pin of James Martin, who was working at a gasoline filling station to earn his college expenses. She returned the pin, she said.

Williamsport Relic Of Edison Burned

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—The building where Thomas A. Edison some 50 years ago set up Williamsport's electric dynamo lies in ruins today.

Explosion of oil while an automobile spring was being welded in the three-story frame structure, lately occupied by automobile and furniture repair shops, started a fire which destroyed the building yesterday.

'BUY AMERICAN' DRIVE GAINS SUPPORT

Patriotic Campaign Urged to Restore Lost Jobs

"Buy American" today is the talk of the town.

Pittsburgh, where unemployment is acute due to the slowing down of manufactories, is ready to go to work when sufficient orders are received.

Many of its industrial heads today added their approval to the "Buy American-made Goods" campaign being sponsored by the Hearst newspapers. Printers are getting out posters to assist in striking the idea home.

"WE MUST DO IT"

Norman Allderdice, president of the Arch Machinery Company, makers of tools, declared:

"It's not only good; we must do it."

J. C. Chaplin, vice president, Pittsburgh Clearing House Association and president of the Colonial Trust Company, says:

"I think in this emergency the 'Buy American' campaign of the Sun-Telegraph is particularly appropriate in many respects. There are, of course, some necessities which are not competitive in their manufacture which this plan cannot cover. Wherever possible and practicable I'm sure all Americans will want to buy American products in self-interest as well as patriotism."

'BUILD UP AMERICA'

J. C. Klein, president of Klein-Logan Company, South Side manufacturers of tools and similar articles, believes in "Buy American" in the present emergency. He says:

"Now, at least, Americans can overlook the benefit of foreign trade. It seems to me their object should be to build up the American market and give work to the unemployed. The normal 10 per cent of our foreign trade can wait."

A. C. Knickerbocker, president of the Pittsburgh Engineering Foundry and Construction Company, says:

"I think the "Buy American" campaign is a good idea if it is

Hint Surprise In Ruth Judd Murder Case

WINNIE RUTH JUDD

'Mystery' Figure to Be Named in Indictment

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 29.—(INS.)—Startling new developments in the Winnie Ruth Judd "double trunk murder case" were awaited today.

Following the surprise appearance before the Maricopa County grand jury of Mrs. Judd, "Velvet Tigress," under sentence to be hanged February 17 for the killing of Agnes Anne Leroi, the jurors were to assemble again today.

Unconfirmed reports were current in this desert city of the double tragedy that the mystery figure who has lurked in the background of the sensational case was to be named openly—possibly in a grand jury indictment.

What the pretty Mrs. Judd told the jurors in a six-hour session remained a closely guarded secret, but the story she told of the killing of Mrs. Leroi and another intimate woman friend, attractive Miss Hedvig Samuelson, was believed by her attorneys to have been the same she had told Sheriff J. R. McFadden and counsel within the past week.

The story, according to Chief Defense Counsel Arthur Verge, was in effect, that she had shot and killed the two women in self-defense while a Phoenix man was intoxicated in the "murder bungalow."

Boy Gives Parents' Savings to Chums

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—When 15-year-old John Ragen found his parents' savings of $1,340 in the bottom of a clothes hamper he decided, the police said, that he could be big hearted. So he started to give it away.

The police recovered $200 given to one boy, but were a trifle late in the case of another, who got $500 and promptly bought an automobile and paid garage rent in advance until next June.

Home Burned, Owner Drowned in Creek

1 KILLED, MANY HURT AS FOG CLOAKS CITY

Mist Hides Robberies, Snarls Traffic and Causes Crashes

Under cover of a thick fog, robbers preyed on pedestrians, business places and homes last night and early today, while vehicular traffic was virtually paralyzed. Automobile crashes killed one man and injured many other persons.

Four armed Negroes robbed two women of their purses. Miss Violet Hughes, 356 Lehigh avenue, was held up two doors from her home by a Negro who seized her purse containing $1.75. Three Negroes seized Mrs. Frances Gregorszyk, of 3020 Wiggins street, as she crossed the Twenty-eighth Street Bridge and escaped with her purse containing $5.20 and rosary beads.

TENTH HOLDUP

The Standard Oil Company service station at Ridge avenue and Reedsdale street was held up for the tenth time in six months, according to S. V. Wentling, attendant, from whom a lone robber obtained $20. Two gunmen held up Charles Brockhoff, attendant at the Atlantic Refining Company station at Murray avenue and Lilac street, and escaped with $15.

A laundry thief broke into the cellar of the apartment of A. H. Sunshine, Jr., at 89 Knox avenue, for the second time within a month. A pedestrian attracted by Mrs. Sunshine's screams, tripped the fleeing thief, who dropped a bundle of laundry, but the thief regained his feet, struck his would-be captor and escaped.

Burglars broke into the home of L. M. Lockhart, 5644 Beacon street, and escaped with an undetermined amount of loot, according to police. The Lockhart family is absent from the city.

MAN KILLED

Harvey McKaige, 40, 215 Tokio street, was killed when he walked into the path of an automobile in Frankstown road. His companion, Joseph Mulvihill, 38, 7236 Hermitage street, was arrested on a drunkenness charge.

Wilbur W. Stevens, 44, of 1125 Lancaster avenue, suffered a fractured left leg when an automobile driven by John Madden, 1132 Jonathan place, struck him after Stevens had alighted from his car in Beeler street, south of Wilkins avenue. Stevens got out of the car to examine it after he had struck a hole in the street.

Scores of minor automobile accidents were attributed to slippery streets, made so by the frost leaving the paving during the warmer weather.

STAR'S MOTHER HURT

In a collision of automobiles at Penn avenue and Barbeau street, Mrs. Mary Karcis, 46, of 1140 Pennsylvania avenue, Monaca, mother of John Karcis, Carnegie Tech football star; his sister, Mrs. Frank Walters, 26, of 1123 Pacific avenue, Monaca, and Miss Alice Long, 19, of 818 Pennsylvania avenue, Monaca, were injured.

Thrown from an automobile when it struck a pole on Saw Mill Run boulevard near Provost road, Betty Lee Smith, 22, of Altoona, was treated at Mercy Hospital for back and leg injuries.

John Campbell, 34, of 1204 Nixon street, was found at Seventh and Liberty avenues with a severe injury to his head. He told police he had suffered his injury when he collided with a pole.

Blinded by the fog, Harold Briola, of 1022 Melrose avenue, Ambridge, reported to police he had driven his automobile off the River road, in Baldwin Township, on to the nearby Pennsylvania Railroad tracks. No one was injured.

Beats Prof's Advice By Marrying Boss

LYNN, Mass., Dec. 29.—(INS.)—Prof. Robert E. Rogers became famous when he urged students at Massachusetts Institute of Technology to "marry the boss' daughter," but William J. Watson, grocery store clerk today had gone a step further by marrying the boss.

Watson, 19, who is just out of school, revealed that he married Miss Elsie Haberland, last August. He first served as an order boy in her grocery store three years ago. Today he was a partner in the business.

'KNIFE MASHER' HUNTED HERE

McKeesport police are closing in on the "penknife masher" who has accosted three young women during the past three days. The hunted man is described as about 22 years old and wearing gray hat and trousers. He has threatened each of his intended victims with a long slender penknife, police say.

First report of his activities was made Monday night by Miss Victoria Warzinak, 17, of 1032 French street, McKeesport, who said the youth sprang at her in Shaw avenue, threw his arms about her and cut her.

Forty minutes after this attack, an unidentified woman told police a man, answering the same description, threatened her in Lincoln street.

The third attack was reported to police last night by Mary Lachapille, 17, of 740 Monongahela avenue, Glassport, who said she was approached at Jenny Lind street and School alley by a young man who said:

"I'll cut you if you cry."

UNANIMOUS VOTE GIVEN ISSUE

Kline and Aides Pick Workers to Fire in Economy Crisis

BULLETIN.

The 1933 salary and appropriation bills, carrying total appropriations of $21,140,000, were unanimously passed by City Council late today.

City Council will unanimously pass the 1933 salary and appropriations bills in the setup of the new city budget, following the affirmative recommendation on the bills made this afternoon by the Finance Committee of Council. The bills are now up for second and final passage.

President of Council John S. Herron yesterday gave assurance that the five "regulars" in Councilwould vote in favor of the bills, and today the three "independents"—Robert Garland, Charles Anderson and P. J. McArdle—said they would vote "Yes."

About City Hall, it is rumored that Mayor Charles H. Kline and his department heads have already begun the work of selecting the persons who are to be dismissed. It is reported that the Mayor will not delay signing the bills.

M'ARDLE MAKES CHARGE

Councilman P. J. McArdle yesterday caused turmoil in Council chamber by charging that the printed salary bill did not conform with the record made in Finance Committee.

Referring to the Bureau of Weights and Measures, McArdle declared that in the original typewritten list of changes submitted to Council by the majority, only three inspectors were eliminated from the bureau.

In the printed bill, the bureau is taken from the Department of Public Safety and put in the Department of Health. The eliminations in the printed bill are one chief inspector, one assistant chief inspector and one inspector.

Councilman Harry Little, who made the original motions for the eliminations before Finance Committee, declared that the changes were made in pencil on his list, that he read them, and that they should have been caught by the other councilmen.

LITTLE DISPUTED

McArdle said:

"I am sorry to inform you that I believe no such statement."

When Little insisted that the correction had been read, McArdle added:

"It is common gossip around here that it was changed after the committee adjourned."

Councilman M. J. Muldowney declared that he had heard Little make the changes in the bill and

Mellons Want Lost Dog Back for Baby

A big black shepherd dog, a white banded breast the only marking, is wanted back at the home of W. L. Mellon, Jr., Arlington Apartments. If he doesn't return, he will miss the fun of growing up with 2-month-old W. L. Mellon III, who will soon be old enough to romp with him.

The animal, a gift from a Coraopolis friend, slipped his leash late Tuesday afternoon, as a boy was walking him along Center avenue, near Aiken avenue.

Last night police were asked to be on the lookout for the animal. They sent a description over the city teletype.

Mr. Mellon explained that the dog frequently slipped away, but after a long run, returned. Their son, he said, was too young to have become attached to the dog, which is little more than a year old.

Lawrenceville Girl Held For Shot at Ex-Suitor

Helen Wright, 26, is in jail today because it is charged, she took a shot at the former boy friend. And the bullet took an historical route which requires a half-dozen or so of X's to mark the spot.

Mr. Brancato

Bill Brancato, 26, was in the store of his brother, Tony, 635 Butler street, Etna, when, he said, Helen appeared and sent the bullet on its way.

It nipped through a cake, clipped Bill's coat sleeve, swished through a can of sauerkraut, tore through a partition into a rear bedroom, crashed through a bureau mirror and imbedded itself in the wall.

Bill went away from there fast, upstairs, from where he saw Helen arrested on the street.

Helen, who lives in Kendall street, Lawrenceville, will be arraigned this afternoon before Justice of the Peace Dan Giles on charges of pointing firearms with intent to kill.

Giles said Bill had explained Helen might have been angered because he had severed relations with her a week or so before Christmas.

BEER REVENUE NEED BRIGHTENS HOPES FOR SENATE BILL

BORAH WEAKENS IN OPPOSITION TO BEVERAGE

Hostile Senator Would Impose High Tax On Breweries

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29. Senate prospects for passage of a beer bill were enhanced today by the decision of House Democratic leaders to withhold action on a general tax measure.

This decision left the Collier bill for 3.2 per cent beer as the only major source of new revenue to help meet the huge Treasury deficit.

Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, who recently branded the Collier bill a "betrayal of the Constitution," announced he would offer an amendment imposing an excess profits tax on breweries.

Pointing to the large profits made by beer manufacturers in the pre-Volstead era, Borah declared the excess profits levy would yield a large revenue.

A third possible source of tax money from beer was under consideration. Reports that German breweries and those of other European countries were planning to import their products on a large scale led to proposals for a tariff on beer imports.

Failing to obtain a quorum of the Senate Judiciary Committee during the Christmas holiday, Chairman Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, issued a call for a meeting next Monday to act upon beer legislation.

Although named by Norris as a member of the Blaine subcommittee to re-draft the Collier bill, Borah has refused to attend meetings called for this purpose. He said:

"I shall attend the meetings on the repeal resolution, but not those dealing with beer."

The committee will decide next week whether to refer the Collier bill to a subcommittee or report out a substitute.

spread around and the people take it to heart. There is a great deal of steel brought in that shouldn't be, as well as a lot of other goods made by cheap labor. We should take care of our own people first."

CAMPAIGN PRAISED

From the Pacific coast came a telegraphic congratulation to the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst newspapers for the "Buy American" campaign, urging Americans to buy canned fish produced in America. The Vancamp Sea Food Company, Inc., declared 50,000 American workers were dependent for their jobs on the chance that Americans are picking native canned fish rather than Asiatic.

Among the many men notable in city and national business life advocating "Buy American, Spend American and See America First" are:

In San Francisco, Richard M. Tobin, former United States Ambassador to the Netherlands, member of the American Commission to Negotiate Peace in Paris, 1918 and 1919, now head of Hibernia Bank; Gov. James C. Rolph, Jr.

In Los Angeles, F. A. Farrington, vice president, Pacific Goodrich Rubber Company; E. R. Perry, manager, Los Angeles Merchents' and Manufacturers' Association; Orra E. Monette, vice president, Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association.

Allied Boards of Trade Urge 'Buy American'

The "Buy American" movement inaugurated by Hearst newspapers, was indorsed at the monthly meeting of the Allied Boards of Trade last night. In lauding the movement, Harry Bastow, president of the organization, said:

"The American public should not be less patriotic than citizens of the British empire, where such a plan is becoming effective. 'Buy American' will clearly demonstrate the quality of American goods over the inferior articles which have been and are now flooding our markets."

C. V. Shoup, secretary, said:

"It is essential to the economic recovery of our nation that every man, woman and child should support the 'Buy American' program. Now is the proper time to institute such a movement. America can adequately supply itself only by such social service methods."

HOOVER SPEEDS TO PALM BEACH

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service.

The President, Mrs. Hoover and their guests hoped to make Palm Beach by late today. If they do Mr. Hoover probably will be out with rod and reel early tomorrow in search of the fighting barracuda. Previous plans called for arrival at the resort tomorrow night.

A meeting between the President and Harry Guggenheim, ambassador to Cuba, was tentatively in prospect today. Guggenheim has announced he would fly from Havana to Palm Beach to greet the President.

Mr. Hoover probably will spend the New Year week-end fishing, with leisurely cruises scheduled for Sunday, when he will not fish. He plans to begin the return trip to Washington by rail Tuesday or Wednesday, but this schedule might be lengthened if the fishing is good.

Aliens Selling Genius Of Edison to America

Light Bulb Imports Close Factories In U. S.

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(Universal Service.)—The genius of Thomas A. Edison, orginally one of the greatest assets of this country, is now being sold in the United States to American citizens by a group of foreign nations, of which Japan is the great individual leader.

In excess of one fourth of the total electric light bulb market of this country already has been captured by the foreign manufacturers who pay no taxes in this country, and who pay only a trifling 15 per cent duty.

Foreign bulbs have made such serious inroads on the American market this year that many of the American bulb making plants are shutting down, and the volume of imported lamps is increasing each month.

Startling figures were cited today by L. V. James, illuminating engineer for the Mazda Lamp Company. The total number of electric lamps distributed in the United States in the year 1932, he said, will be about 400,000,000. Of these, he said, about 100,000,000 have come from foreign countries, paying a small duty of 15 per cent and at the same time offering a deadly competition to American industry.

Of the 100,000,000 foreign-made bulbs, James said, about 75,000,000 are from Japan.

Statisticians in Washington figured today that the old American industry of manufacturing Christmas tree bulbs, for example, is dying if not actually dead. Japan lighted practically all of the American Christmas trees this year. Nippon sent us at least 25,000,000 Christmas tree bulbs alone. Meanwhile, thousands of our bulb makers were out of work and had the worst Christmas of their lives.

The remedy can be written in two words: Buy American.

SUSPECTS FREE IN LINDY QUIZ

Questioned in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping, Hollister Demo, of Staten Island, son of a federal prohibition agent located in Pittsburgh until 1926, has been released, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Jersey City.

Demo, an unemployed chauffeur, returned home $5 better off as a result of the questioning. He said police gave him the money.

John (Lucky) Miller, of Jersey City, taken into custody with Demo, also was released.

The two men were liberated after Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" of ransom negotiations, failed to recognize either as the man to whom he had given $50,000.

Both Demo and Miller agreed to the questioning. Neither had been placed under arrest. Demo became a suspect when a librarian in the Newark Public Library said a young man had come there and asked for the application card of Hollister Demo, saying he would not want police to compare the signature with the Lindbergh ransom notes.

COURT PERMITS BACK TAX LOAN

The first court order under the act passed at the last special session of the Legislature permitting municipalities to borrow on delinquent taxes was signed in Allegheny County today by Judge Samuel H. Gardner, enabling the Borough of Turtle Creek to borrow $25,000.

With this loan, secured by delinquent taxes, and the money the borough already has in banks, it will be able to carry on until next September, when the new taxes are to be paid, according to Solicitor Bertram Kenyon.

Kenyon told the court the borough has collected only 20 per cent of its 1932 taxes.

As a result of the loan, the borough will be able to keep its 23 city employes on its payroll and meet its current bills, which amount to $15,000, Kenyon said.

Colombia and Peru Massing for War

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Dec. 29.—(INS.)—War between Colombia and Peru over the border town of Leticia appeared imminent today as thousands of soldiers of both nations were reported converging on the small Amazon River port.

The present dispute over Leticia, the property of Colombia, began some months ago when it was seized by Peruvian soldiers.

Judge's Complaint Brings Man's Arrest

Mike Koltick, 1701 Grover street, McKeesport, was arrested last night on a charge of violating the Snyder act, after a complaint had been made against him to Judge Frank P. Patterson.

County Detective James C. O'Brien said he found a 20-gallon still operating in Koltick's home. He was held for court under $1,000 bond at a hearing before Justice of the Peace A. C. Markus.

BEATEN WOMAN ACCUSES MATE

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—From the hospital bed where she is undergoing treatment for a multiple skull fracture and other injuries, Mrs. Adelaide Doing Stork, estranged wife of a wealthy Baltimore and Miami Beach resident, has asked the Circuit Court of Dade County for protection on the grounds she fears death at the hands of her husband, in conspiracy with others.

The husband is Clinton Warner Stork, from whom Mrs. Stork separated a year ago and against whom she recently filed divorce proceedings here.

She and Bart A. Riley, her attorney, were attacked in her apartment and beaten to unconsciousness.

Mrs. Freida J. Riley, the attorney's wife, and his 20-year-old son Bernard were arrested on charges of breaking and entering and assault upon Mrs. Stork with intent to kill. They were released under bond of $5,000 each.

Mrs. Riley admitted attacking her husband and Mrs. Stork, police said.

PAUL-BONCOUR FACES TEST

By FREDERIC K. ABBOTT
International News Service.

PARIS, Dec. 29.—Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour decided this afternoon to risk the fate of his cabinet on his decision to continue default on the $19,500,000 December war debt payment to the United States while at the same time agreeing to lend $14,000,000 to Austria.

Under a sharp attack, led by Deputy Louis Marin, who declared it was "monstrous" to lend money to Austria, "our former enemy," while refusing to pay the United States, "our former ally," Paul-Boncour summoned his cabinet into special session.

It was agreed to make approval of the Austrian loan a question of confidence, the government resigning if the Chamber of Deputies registers an adverse vote. Opinion in the chamber corridors is that Paul-Boncour will be sustained by a small majority.

WARSAW, Dec. 29.—(INS.)—The Polish government, which defaulted on its December 15 war debt payment to the United States, is prepared to pay $1,500,000 interest and amortization on the Dillon loan of 1924 on Monday, it was announced today.

Quarry Worker Hurt Safeguarding Others

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Dec. 29.—(INS.)—James Frost, 55, of Millville, N. J., was seriously injured today while attempting to safeguard the lives of fellow workers in a quarry at Cold Point, near here.

Frost attempted to remove a ledge of overhanging stone, which he feared might fall on the workers. He dislodged the rocks, but toppled to the bottom of the quarry pit, a distance of 30 feet.

ON NOVEMBER 9 a hurricane in Cuba killed 2,500 and destroyed much property. The Cuban government will issue 5,000 stamps, no more, with an appropriate engraving, commemorating the hurricane.

These stamps, eagerly bought by collectors, will supply money to build four kilometers of road to reach the heart of Santa Cruz, that the hurricane destroyed.

An easy, interesting way to make money.

WOMAN HUNTED IN TORCH DEATH

ERIE, Pa., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Police, searching for a woman today, in connection with the "torch slaying" of Mike Ezbecki, whose charred body was found in a blazing automobile, say the crime is the culmination of a liquor war.

Investigators, who found a woman's footprints in the muddy country road where the car was discovered early yesterday, point out that Ezbecki recently served six months in the Allegheny County Workhouse for a liquor law violation.

A bus driver, en route here from Buffalo, N. Y., discovered the burning machine near Six-mile Creek, about two miles from Erie. Ezbecki, 58, was identified by his wife, Barbara, who recognized a watch and chain found in the ruins of the machine.

Prison Head Silent On Yule Riot Report

ATTICA, N. Y., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Warden William Hunt, of Attica Prison, today refused to confirm reports of a Christmas Day outbreak among the convicts while they were in the dining room.

This village had reports that tear gas was used to quiet prisoners who interrupted the Christmas dinner by shouting and stamping and then wrenched stools from the floor and hurled them at guards.

PUSH SHAKEUP FOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(INS.)—President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt will be given sweeping powers to reorganize the federal government and abolish unnecessary bureaus under a plan approved today by Democratic leaders in both Senate and House.

The authority will be conferred in a "rider" to an appropriation bill either in the Senate or House.

Representative Byrnes (Dem.), of Tennessee, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said that the "rider" will be attached to the last House deficiency bill unless the Senate acts first.

While Congress would retain a check upon the incoming President's reorganization work, the powers planned are almost czar-like in character.

Speaker John N. Garner indorsed the proposal, saying:

"I hope that Congress might see fit to give the incoming President broad powers to cut down the expense of government."

ROOSEVELT JOB IN N. Y. ENDS

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—With the end of his term as governor of New York only two days away, President-elect Roosevelt today was clearing his desk for his successor, Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman.

At the same time the Governor was preparing plans for seeking first-hand information on the nation's financial situation before committing himself to any tax policy designed to balance the federal budget.

In connection with the gathering of this information, which his friends feel will be one of the first tasks to which he will set himself after his term of governor ends Saturday, Mr. Roosevelt was preparing for a conference with Vice President-elect John N. Garner, Speaker of the House, either at his Hyde Park estate or his New York City home some day next week.

Boom in Cupid's Mart Hints New Prosperity

CHICAGO, Dec. 29. — (AP.) — Cupid had stepped in as statistician and forecaster of economic trends today, and asserted that the upturn came after a bump on the bottom of the graph last June.

June, of all months the bride's own, showed the biggest drop in marriage licenses of any month this year, when compared with 1931. Since June, said County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer yesterday, business has been picking up in the marriage mart.

If you don't believe the marriage graph follows the general business curve, explain these figures: Marriage licenses issued at Chicago thus far in 1932 fell 15.4 per cent short of the 1931 total; 27 per cent under the 1930 figure and 37 per cent short of 1929.

But—cheer up! November just past was the nearest to 1931 figures of any month this year, and December is doing fairly well.

Here are the county clerk's talking points: In June, the low point, marriage licenses were 965 fewer than June, 1931; July was 630 short; August 455 short; September 693 less, October 333 less and November 94 less than a year ago. December promises to run 139 under last year.

Scientists Can't Find Isle to See Eclipse

Financiers are not the only persons having their troubles in these closing days of 1932, for the astronomers the world over are also perturbed.

Dr. Frank C. Jordan, director of the Allegheny Observatory, explained today the savants of the heavens have an even greater problem to solve than any of our banking geniuses. He declared:

"In 1937 the best solar eclipse in modern times will be visible in the middle of the Pacific Ocean. The astronomers, however, cannot find even one tiny island on which to park their cameras. Its both a humorous and a sad situation."

Dr. Jordan pointed out that the astronomers cross their bridges years ahead of time. Even though the eclipse is more than four years hence, a close scrutiny of maps is being made in the hope of finding at least one tiny spot of land in the path of the eclipse.

He said it will be impossible to use a boat. So if an island is not found the more than seven-minute eclipse will go for naught.

BIBLICAL IDEA OF CREATION UPHELD BEFORE SCIENTISTS

MAN'S DECLINE DECLARED ON WAY AT 25

Elevation of Old Men In Politics Held Loss to Nation

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—The Biblical idea that earth, the Heavens, and stars were created all at once in one mighty action, instead of condensing piecemeal from a "nebula" was supported last night before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

This picture of creation is the latest discovery of science, and was explained by Dr. Harlow Shapley, world-famous Harvard astronomer. It has the sun and all the stars and planets forming out of one big cloud of something—possibly hot gas.

It all happened about ten billion years ago. That's what Einstein recently suggested. The new theory is an outgrowth of the idea of Abbe Le Maitre, Belgian astronomer, that creation originally was just one big atom, which exploded into the present "expanding universe."

The popular idea that old men are specially fitted by wisdom and virility for leadership was declared largely a myth by Dr. David Wechsler, psychiatric division, Bellevue Hospital, New York, who said:

"Such evidence as we have clearly shows that by the age of 25 the average man is already on the decline intellectually as well as physically. There is no doubt in my mind that in a fair test of native intellectual capacity, that is, one in which the benefit of experience could be ruled out, the man of 30 would have as little chance against the man of 20 as the prize fighter of 35 has against one of 25 in the ring.

"The elevation of old men to high places in politics and positions of authority in intellectual fields has been specially detrimental. Most university professors could be retired with profit to science at the age of fifty."

Hairy Chested Women Seen as Result of 'Bob'

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 29.—(INS.)—The bobbed-hair craze must result inevitably in hairy-chested, hairy-armed and hairy-limbed women if it is kept up long enough, Dr. Bruno Getteking, professor of anthropology at Columbia University, told a sectional meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science today.

Hair prevented from growing from the scalp will get even by growing elsewhere, he explained, there being a certain amount of "keritin," or hair substance, in the body which must "out." He said:

"Hairy chests, necks and limbs are caused by the continual cutting of the hair on the scalp. Cutting lessens the tensible strength of the scalp and causes the destruction of the hair bulb. If women continue to bob their hair, they will suffer the same fate as men."

SUSPECT HOAX IN 'SLAYING'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(INS.)—Fearing the murder theory broadcast in connection with the disappearance of R. S. McCoin, Henderson (N. C.) attorney, might be a hoax, local police today started a search of hotels, rooming houses and hospitals in hopes of finding him. Police chiefs of Henderson and Richmond, Va., where McCoin's nephews live, asked that such a search be made here.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 29.—(INS.)—R. S. McCoin, missing Henderson (N. C.) attorney, was probably in Columbus as late as 7:30 p. m. Christmas eve, police here said today in a telegram sent to J. H. Langston, Henderson police chief. McCoin disappeared from North Carolina December 22.

A man who parked McCoin's automobile in a Columbus garage answers the descriptions given out by Henderson police, and a photograph of him, viewed from a police circular, appears to be of the same man, according to Detective Sergt. Thomas Scully.

Scully asked Langston to send a better photograph.

Tracy said he planned to sell the shoestrings to get money for food.

Widow, Lawyer Still Hunt Collings Slayer

MRS. BENJAMIN COLLINGS . . . STILL HOPING FOR A SOLUTION

HOPE FOR SEVEN IN DEATH MINE

MOWEAQUA, Ill., Dec. 29.—(INS.)—Down in the black maw of the Shafer coal mine seven men may still be alive, clinging desperately to the hope that somehow help will reach them before it is too late.

The possibility that the disaster, known to have brought death to 47 workers, may have spared the lives of these last seven men was voiced today by Glenn Shafer, owner of the wrecked mine.

Shafer made known his opinion only a few hours after 25 rescue workers, temporarily trapped by a new fall of slate, narrowly escaped the same fate which overtook most, or perhaps all, of the 54 miners who went down into the pit Saturday morning just before a double explosion heralded the catastrophe.

Today the rescue work was concentrated in feverish efforts to penetrate the tangled underground debris and reach the extreme end of the north entry. It is here that the last seven men are believed to be, alive or dead.

Confession Held Only Hope of Solving Yacht Mystery

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.

STAMFORD, Conn., Dec. 29.—Somewhere along a waterfront, where dwell the shiftless men known as "floaters," a guilt-racked man with burning eyes may break down and tell, on the verge of death, what happened to Benjamin Collings.

Or, when violence breaks out again in a remote seaport, a stalwart fellow with bushy black brows may be seized—and connected with the crime aboard the yacht Penguin a year and four months ago, when a man was thrown overboard to drown and his wife carried off in a canoe.

For it is a "casual" crime, the kind that defies solution, being planless, motiveless, formless and bitterly effective, according to William Kelly, attorney for Mrs. Lillian Collings, the murdered man's widow. Kelly said:

"About the only hope we have now is that there will be a confession. We have traced down every clue, and none has proved out. The chance of locating the murderers is remote."

Slayer of 'Mountie' Dies on Scaffold

AZTEC PRINCESS FIRST HEROINE OF AMERICA

Lady Six Monkey Wins At Love and War in Story of Scientist

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—The oldest love story in America, about an Aztec princess who won the man of her choice despite all obstacles, was told today before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

And they lived happily ever after, according to the old deerskin manuscript on which the story is written in quaint picture writing. Events in Southern Mexico dating back 350 years before the Spaniards came in 1519 are recorded on the deerskin, which was described by Herbert J. Spinden, of the Brooklyn Museum.

LADY SIX MONKEY

It tells the tale of a lady named "Six Monkey," which is the most accurate way of translating into English the pictures that stand for her name in the old manuscript.

As a young girl she had much difficulty in gaining permission to marry the man she wished, named "Eleven Wind," but finally the wedding was celebrated.

The next year two of Princess Six Monkey's ambassadors were insulted by two young chieftains.

AZTEC JEANNE D'ARC

Princess Six Monkey declared a war of revenge, first asking advice of an old "death woman" at a temple of skulls. Like Jeanne d'Arc she led her forces against the two towns of the young chiefs, and personally captured her enemies.

A few days later one of the captives was sacrificed by cutting his heart out before a temple, while the other was led away by the ambassadors and sacrificed at another place.

NUMBERS WAR FLARES ANEW

The numbers concession battle that has been waged on the South Side for the last few years between Thomas (Goose) Goslin and "Hunkey Joe" Lewandowski flared anew today when Aloysius Lewandowski, 20-year-old son of "Hunkey Joe," was held for court on a charge of operating a lottery.

In Morals Court, before Magistrate Thomas B. Jones, Aloysius was accused of having a pack of numbers tickets in his machine when arrested yesterday by Plainclothesmen George Franz and J. J. Shaughnessey in the 2700 block, Arlington avenue.

The policemen alleged the youth attempted to wreck their car and Franz testified he kicked him in the stomach. Aloysius testified he was not in the numbers racket and said a stranger left the package of numbers in his car.

"Goose" Goslin is reported to be riding on the crest of the numbers wave, with "Hunkey Joe" riding in the trough.

HOTEL FIRE LAID TO CIGARET

A cigaret dropped on the bed of Frank Reed, 25, of Fairmont, W. Va., a hotel guest, was declared responsible today by District Battalion Fire Chief George Spahr for the blaze which early yesterday swept the Seventh Avenue Hotel, causing the death of one man. Reed was held for the Coroner at a hearing today before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court after he denied the fire started in his room. Later the Coroner discharged him.

Chief Spahr, testifying at the hearing, said there was no evidence to show Reed deliberately started the fire, but that by being careless he jeopardized the lives of several hundred persons. Reed denied the contention that the blaze started in his room. He said:

"When I awoke and opened the door, the hallway was on fire. If it started in my room I know nothing about it."

Hates to Remove Nude of Herself From Gallery

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(INS.)—Miss Cati Mount, vivacious leader of Chicago's art colony, was wrestling today with the perplexing problem of whether the nude is to go or to stay. The nude in question is a painting adorning the wall of a new gallery under Miss Mount's direction. Mrs. Frank G. Logan, one of the gallery's patronesses, has demanded that the picture be removed. Miss Mount said:

"I hate to antagonize anybody, but I also hate to remove the painting. I think it is a good picture. I posed for it myself."

HANGING STIRS IRISH PROTEST

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—A banner bearing the words—"British hangman destroys Irishman: Is this justice?"—was displayed today amidst a throng gathered outside Mount Joy Prison when Patrick McDermott, a Roscommon farmer, was executed for the murder of his brother, John.

Pierrepont, noted English professional executioner, had been commissioned to carry out the sentence as there was no official executioner in the Free State.

There were vigorous protests from the throng and, when the execution hour approached, the crowd knelt in prayer.

Petitions for McDermott's reprieve had been extensively signed.

ELOPING ELINOR ADMITS 'ERROR'

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—It was "just a big mistake" when Elinor Fair, film actress and former wife of William Boyd, screen star, flew to Yuma, Ariz., Tuesday and married Thomas W. Daniel, former naval aviator. Miss Fair said today she had employed an attorney to begin annulment proceedings. She declared:

"I was blue after having quarreled with Frank Clark, my sweetheart, and I thought I'd show him how smart I was. It was just a big mistake."

Clark is a movie stunt pilot.

Miss Fair said she had not seen her husband since they returned from Yuma by airplane, three hours after the marriage ceremony. When the wedding was revealed, Clark had announced it was a mistake and assured his friends it would be "corrected."

'PRINCE MIKE' STILL BALKS U. S. OUSTER

Immigration Officials Puzzled; Tobacco Traps Pretender

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Two things bothered the officials on Ellis Island today—and Prince Mike (otherwise Harry Gerguson) was both of them.

How he got into the country, and how to get him out, furnished the details of one of the knottiest problems the board of immigration inspectors has ever tried to solve.

For an hour and a half Prince Mike in his best Oxford accent told them over and over that he had come in from Canada, absolutely unaided.

But the board suspected that he had arrived on the Europa of the North German line as a stowaway. They suspected that he had been smuggled off the ship when it docked last week by friends who knew he was on board.

His royal highness was more interested in the commissary situation on the island than in the deportation proceedings. Prince Mike has $162.27 and a royal appetite. He wanted to pay for his own meals, but the privilege was denied, even though he pleaded that the fare set before common immigrants at a cost of $1 a day to the government was offensive to his royal palate.

It was his exclusive taste for $10-a-pound tobacco that led to the present eclipse of the pretender extraordinary.

LAMP FALLS ON MARY PICKFORD

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 29.—(INS.)—Mary Pickford was recovering today from injuries suffered on a film studio set when a huge lamp fell and knocked her unconscious. Her head and an arm were badly bruised.

Miss Pickford was resting in a canvas chair between scenes when the accident occurred. She was thrown backward and pinned to the floor beneath the weight of the lamp.

Douglas Fairbanks picked up the shattered lamp and hurled it several feet, then carried Miss Pickford to a dressing room where a physician had been summoned.

2 Priests, Brother Beaten by Robbers

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(INS.)—Severely beaten with a fire poker by three robbers who broke into his parish home, the Rev. Blaz Jerkovic, of St. Jerome's Catholic Church, was in a hospital today. The assistant pastor, the Rev. Hugolin Feyso, and a lay brother, Aloysius Soldo, also were set upon by the three hoodlums, but their injuries were less serious. The robbers took a small quantity of money and fled.

Tickling of Feet Good Exercise for Baby

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Tickling the baby's feet is not necessarily a laughing matter—it's good exercise for the child's pedal extremities, according to a statement by the Philadelphia County Medical Society. The statement says:

"Draw the end of your fingernail gently across the sole of the baby's foot. The foot may be drawn up or down or to the side. Then try again. This time you may find the motion in a different direction.

"At the end of the exercise period the baby has moved its foot in all directions and exercised muscles not ordinarily used so early in life."

'Poor Woiking Goil' Best Credit Risk

ST. PAUL, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—There was a time when the phrase, "pity the poor woiking goil," would make strong men cry and stern women soften in sympathy.

But no more, for, as Ralph Walker, secretary of the Mutual Credit Rating Exchange of St. Paul, says she has become one of the best credit risks in the country.

She has attained that rating, Walker explained, because she used her credit judiciously and keeps within her income. Walker said:

"Women are more cautious. They are the budget makers. They buy wisely, use credit wisely."

As a class, Walker says, single women are better credit risks than single men because men take chances; women don't. Often young men will go out and charge things they are unable to pay for, hoping for a lucky "break" to pull them through. Women, generally, he said, are not so imprudent.

Women also are the reason why the low-salaried married man is oue of the best credit risks, he said. The working girl, when she marries, generally weds a man of her own class and into their new home she carries her knowledge of budgeting and judicious use of credit.

FINAL ACTION ON BUDGET AWAITED

make a motion to transfer the bureau to the Department of Health. Robert Garland and Charles Anderson declared that no such motion for transfer was made.

Herron, interrupting the conversation, which had become lively at this point, said:

"These insinuations are wrong. What we did, we did in the light of day. I dare you to produce anyone who will prove otherwise."

CHANGES MADE

It was agreed at Herron's suggestion that the bills be returned to the Finance Committee, where they would be formally amended to include all the changes referred to in the Bureau of Weights and Measures.

Later, in Finance Committee, Little moved to change the set-up in weights and measures to conform to the printed bill, and to restore to the budget the assistant dentist at Mayview, another item which it was declared had been replaced behind the scenes. These motions carried, although the three independent Councilmen voted "no."

RELIEF AMENDMENT

On motion by Garland, the entire salary scale set up for the city's relief unemployment projects to be carried on with money provided from the $3,000,000 bond issue voted by the people, was taken out of the budget.

Garland objected to the high rates of wages, declaring that the wage rates should be more in keeping with the times, so that more persons could be employed with the funds available. The scales set up were virtually the union scales for skilled labor.

Controller James P. Kerr has certified to Council that the budget, as it stands, balances. He qualified this, however, by stating that it is impossible to say how much revenue will be received by the city next year.

FREEDOM SEEN FOR GANDHI

LONDON, Dec. 29. — (INS.) — Mahatma Gandhi, leader of India's campaign against untouchability, and all other non-violent political prisoners in Indian jails will be released New Years Day, according to present government plans, the London Daily Herald said today. It is estimated the prisoners number about 20,000.

The Herald added that Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary for India, was convinced the amnesty is essential for Indo-British relations.

BOMBAY, Dec. 29. — (INS.) — Mahatma Gandhi will indefinitely postpone his proposed "fast unto death" over the refusal of Hindus to permit untouchables to enter Guruvayoor Temple, it was reported today. The mahatma is in jail at Poona.

Two Women Plunge To Death in N. Y.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(INS.)—That strange thing called coincidence played a tragic role today.

Two women, each 55 years old, committed suicide at the same hour and in the same manner. Isabelle Dudley jumped from the window of her sixth floor Manhattan apartment as Clara Joslit was plunging from a window of her fifth floor apartment in the Bronx.

There was no connection between the two.

Phila. Mayor Delays Signing Budget Bill

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29. — (INS.)—The city's proposed $81,417,113 budget for 1933 today still lacked the signature of Mayor J. Hampton Moore.

Although Council passed the appropriation bill almost unanimously, the Mayor withheld his signature after discussing the budget for several hours with a group of 11 bankers. He has 10 days in which to accept or reject the budget.

Japs Deny Asking Advice From Hoover

TOKIO, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—The Japanese national economic council today vigorously denied reports it had invited President Hoover or any other American to advise Japan on economic matters.

German experts are being considered for the advisory role, it was stated.

SHENKEL BOLTS DEMOCRATS ON SPEAKER

By MARK SHIELDS

There will be no solid delegation of nine Allegheny County Democrats to back the minority choice for speaker of the House when the Legislature convenes next Tuesday.

Representative Jacob W. Shenkel of the Sixth District, elected as a Democrat, and accredited to that party in the legislative rolls made up at Harrisburg, intends to vote for the Republican speakership candidate, Representative Grover C. Talbot, of Delaware County.

Shenkel, a life-long Republican, was defeated in the Republican primary last spring, but won a Democratic nomination, and was swept to victory in the Roosevelt wave which engulfed Allegheny County. This will be his first legislative term.

VOTE NOT PLEDGED

The Sixth District member attended the Democratic caucus held Tuesday night in the offices of County Chairman David L. Lawrence, but, after frankly announcing that he intended to vote for Talbot, added that he did consider himself bound by any resolutions adopted as a part of Democratic policy. Among the proposals indorsed by the Democrats were abolition of county fee offices and permissive legislation to allow Pittsburgh to adopt the city manager form of government if it desires at some future time.

Shenkel today said:

"I am not bound by the action of any party or any organization on any advance program of legislation. I am perfectly free to act on by own initiative and expect to do so at Harrisburg. First of all I intend to look out for the best interests of the Sixth Legislative District and then for the public at large, so far as my vote can do that. It goes without saying that I will be for any measures to strengthen the election laws."

VAGUE ON RULES

Shenkel was asked whether he would vote to deprive the Speaker of authority to name committees, turning that power over to a committee on committees. He said:

"That is a subject I have not studied thoroughly, and on which I am not committed. I shall listen to both sides when I reach Harrisburg."

The attitude of Representative Shenkel is being duplicated elsewhere in the state among a few Legislators elected as Democrats but actually Republicans. Republican organization leaders hope to obtain from them sufficient assistance to defeat the effort of Pinchot Republicans and orthodox Democrats to strip the Speaker of his authority.

COX APPEALS FOR BARROWS

Wanted—wheelbarrows!

It doesn't seem possible that wheelbarrows would cut much figure in bringing relief to the needy. Yet, they are very essential.

It seems that Father Cox is in a position to get free all the coal he can haul for his destitute families. A group of miners within the city limits, themselves unemployed, are willing to dig coal for the poor. They have access to the mine and have already given Father Cox more than 100 tons.

Father Cox' helpers are handicapped in not having wheelbarrows to expedite their work in passing the coal along to the destitute. These do not necessarily have to be new wheelbarrows. Father Cox will accept broken ones and have them repaired by carpenters and mechanics in his emergency shop. If you have a wheelbarrow to spare call Grant 4390 and the "father of the jobless" will gladly send for it.

In the meantime the subscription drive inaugurated by the Sun-Telegraph for Father Cox is still meeting with gratifying success. Every subscription that comes in on the special blank on this page brings to the Father Cox unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

Over the Top with Turkeys at McCanns

Increase in dollars

74%
Increase in transactions

THE TURKEY SALE

Last week was a gala time at McCanns. Crowds thronged the two stores every day. New customers mingled with McCann "regulars." Buying was brisk in all departments. And when turkey sales went over the top in spite of the fact that the price was less than half of what it was last year, we knew the depression was over at McCanns. Over sixty-three tons of Puritan turkeys left McCanns for Christmas dinner tables this year.

THE TURKEY PRICE

McCanns takes no credit for the low turkey price. The law of supply and demand regulates price. We do take credit, however, for the high quality turkey sold at this year's low price. Puritan turkeys at nineteen cents were just as fine as those we sold at seventy-eight cents a pound some years ago. We preferred to disappoint many customers by running out of turkeys Saturday rather than substitute an inferior quality.

THE TURKEY GUARANTEE

Everything is done that is humanly possible to prevent disappointments, but in handling 127,704 pounds of turkeys there are bound to be some mistakes. We do not claim perfection. No turkey orders were taken after noon last Friday because we knew we could not properly take care of more. "For absolute reliability" is more than a slogan at McCanns; it's a guarantee . . . an ideal.

TURKEY ORDERS FOR NEW YEARS

If you plan to serve a Puritan Turkey for New Year's place your order now. The price will be twenty-three cents a pound. The turkeys will come from the northwest . . . freshly dressed for New Year's dinner. About two-thirds of the turkeys sold at Christmas time were ordered by telephone . . . a tribute to the McCann slogan . . . for absolute reliability

TWO TIPS GIVEN OVERWORKED CIPHER FANS

"Give us a tip—quick! I have worked all night on the 'Tipster's' message' and am about nerts."

This from one of the city's most ardent cipherites—and a few others not quite so expressive—is very disturbing, very. The cipher LOOKED simple. Sorry if it kept anyone awake nights. To make amends, some very thorough tips are given today as a means of helping with the solution.

FIRST METHOD: An inspection of the cipher indicates that each character or letter is designated by two components, a letter and a figure, which suggests a rectangular figure in which the alphabet is arranged with letters on one side and figures on the other. The letters X, Y, Z, and the numerals 1 to 9 appear; in other words, factors of three and nine, which indicate 27 spaces in the rectangle, or three rows of letters, with nine letters in a row. One of these must be a blank, and the character X9 does not appear. Work it out yourself from there. Remember that the alphabet may be transposed in some manner, but probably in a simple one.

SECOND METHOD: In any cipher where figures are used, or arbitrary symbols other than letters, it is sometimes easier for the decipherer to substitute letters for the figures or symbols. To save time, in this case, start out tentatively with the common frequency order. A common frequency order in English is E, T, O, A, N, I, R, S, H, D, L, U, C, etc. Remember that in a short message frequency of letters is NOT an infallible guide, but only a help. In this case you will note that the two letters are tied for third place. Hence, for a start, go no further than that. Use E for the most frequent appearing symbol, T for the second and any letters at all for the balance of the characters. Now, as in the first day's puzzle, look closely for combinations of letters, such a TH, THE, THO, TO, TI, AN, IN, IT, AT, IF, IN, AND, HAS, HIM, etc. Without spacing, of course, you can't pick out short words, except after picking out the suggested combinations. Here are two other things to remember: In most English messages consonants J, K, Q, X and Z occur less than 2 per cent of the total. Therefore, in a short message, letters which do not appear at all are probably among these. Vowels A, E, I, O and U usually occur about 40 per cent and consonants L, N, R, S and T usually about 30 per cent.

CIPHER No. 32.

"Tipster's Message"

Z9 Z6 X7 Y6 X3 Y9 Y4
Z1 Y5 Z8 Z1 X1 Z6 Z9 X4
Z5 X2 Z8 Y6 X3 X1 Z1 Y5

Z5 Z3 Y9 Z5 Z3 X7 Y7 Y3

Y7 Y4 X2 Y6 Y4 Y6 Y9 Y9
Z8 Z5 Z1 X2 Y9 Z5 Y3 Y6
Z2 Z2 X7.

This is a popular amateur's cipher, and is similar to one which attracted considerable attention when, during the Lindbergh kidnaping case, a cipher message appeared each day for a period in a local newspaper. You should be able to decipher it in 31 minutes.

See today's article for clues as to solution.

Listening In on Radioland Gossip

Winifred Lenihan, formerly of the Theater Guild and now a radio directress, makes her actors rehearse six and seven hours for every hour they act on the air—which is almost without precedent in radio . . . A female version of Jack Pearl, to be done by Jean Sothern, one of the air's most clever actresses, is planned . . . James Melton may go into motion pictures . . . Tony Canzoneri, the boxer, is looking for a radio spot for his orchestra . . . Gus Edwards, the star finder, has a radio act that's being auditioned.

Miss Lenihan

Joe Cook and the Four Hawaiians, are reported due to return to the air before Easter . . . as is Sophie Tucker . . . and Ann Harding is being considered as an air headliner by several advertisers.

"Our Family" moves to a 6:30 spot Sunday.

Ben Alley, the tenor, is planning to get married at the instant London's Big Ben starts to ring in the New Year over the networks . . .

C. H. R., of Washington, Pa., writes to ask:

"Are the members of the radio audience so dull of perception that the program must have studio 'guests' or the orchestra to applaud the wisecracks so that we'll know when to laugh? Some of them are so well trained that they drown out the speaker before he reaches the point of the joke—if any. Ray Knight's 'yes' men surely started sumpin'."

If you go in for statistics: Carson Robinson has written 200 songs . . . Frank Blank has made more than 200 arrangements for the Revelers during 1932 . . . Ray Knight broadcast 300 times this year . . . The Boswells have learned 1,000 songs since they've been on the air from New York . . . Harry Rose has a collection of 12,000 jokes . . . Jack Pearl has mispronounced 1,800 words of the English language during his Magic Carpet gagging . . . Eddie and Ralph have appeared before the microphone 3,400 times . . . the Don Hall Trio sang as many as 300 different songs in one week of broadcasting before they came to the NBC-WEAF net.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello Ladies and Gentlemen:

In these troublesome tax times it is with a sigh for the good old days that we read an ancient tax notice prized by Mrs. Sara Watters, of Greensburg, informing the citizen that his tax is 10 cents and if dissatisfied an appeal will be held at house of Daniel Fleming, Esquire, the 29th day of April, 1813. Can you imagine?

Grandmother Schmidt, of McKeesport, tops her in years, though, by being 74.

And here is Grandmother Staub, of Glenshaw, being greeted on her 76th anniversary.

But in Carnegie with the same natal date is Mrs. Elizabeth Hackius, who was 86.

Eighty-six isn't old at all. Mrs. Mary Spahr, of Millvale, was 90 yesterday.

But they are all a bunch of children compared to the youngest of all globe-trotters, Mrs. Anne Jane Reed May, of McDonald, who listened to her greetings on her 102nd birthday.

It's an inspiration isn't it to know that advancing years do not mean diminishing happiness?

Arthur Naugle has a righteous complaint. Saturday he parked his car in front of his house on Mifflin road, Lincoln place, and started in the house with his Christmas tree trimmings. A moment or two later he came out to find the tree gone. He says that if the person who took the tree calls him he can have the trimmings too. The Yuletide spirit, no?

* * *

Here's H. M., from Charleroi, with a splendid idea for the new year. Says he:

"Let's find a new word for depression in 1933."

He's tired of hearing that word and a lot of others are too. It would be better to have no depression but as long as this economic circumstance does exist, can you help by furnishing a new word for the Globe-Trotter to use?

THEATER HEADS GET HEARING ON SUNDAY BAN

OIL CITY, Pa., Dec. 29.—Motion picture theater interests evidently believing that an anti-Sunday show ordinance is destined to pass here, prepared today for a hearing before Mayor John G. Payne and City Council next Tuesday when they will try to convince the officials that the proposed measure is discriminatory. Its passage on third and final reading is expected before the middle of January.

2,300 FAVOR SHOWS

Attorney Maurice P. Breene, counsel for Les Bowser and Herman Stahl, managers of the two theaters, said 2,300 persons had signed petitions in favor of Sunday movies as against 1,200 signers favoring a stringent ban. The pending ordinance provides a fine of $300 or 90 days in jail.

If it is finally adopted a concerted effort may be made, it was learned today, to force Sunday closing of grocery stores, newsstands, milk depots, confectionery stores and gasoline stations.

The Rev. F. H. Andrus, president of the Oil City Ministerial Association, told Council that if more signers are wanted against Sunday shows, signatures can undoubtedly be procured. He estimated one-fourth the possible signatures had been obtained.

PREDICTS PASSAGE

Mayor Payne has publicly announced the ordinance will not be "railroaded," but predicted its passage in the usual manner. It prohibits all Sunday amusements and the operation of any amusement devices or machines, except those for educational, religious or charitable purposes.

It makes it the duty of the Mayor and police to enforce the ordinance, to disperse audiences, close buildings and grounds and arrest violators.

WRECK KILLS 2, PLOT BLAMED

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Vandalism was blamed today by State's Attorney Wolford H. Absher as he investigated the wreck of a Wabash passenger train that cost the lives of two men, injured two others and endangered the lives of several passengers.

The train swerved from the main line just inside the city limits last night, shunted onto a switch and crashed into an oil tank car. The engine and one car overturned, drenched in a flood of burning oil, which was quickly extinguished.

The engineer, John Rapp, and the fireman, H. L. Meyer, died from injuries.

Absher said preliminary investigation showed someone filed open the lock on the switch, threw it wide, and then removed the red danger light that normally would show when the switch was open.

HOMESTEAD TAX RATE FOUGHT

Members of the Property Owners' Association of Homestead last night made plans to reduce borough taxes after Chairman G. V. L. Wickerham announced that Burgess John J. Cavanaugh is reported to have told a committee that he would rather resign than reduce taxes.

Borough council was of the same opinion as the burgess, Wickerham said.

The members of the association seemed especially bitter because the borough had 17 paid firemen while Munhall has none and the police force of 28 men has doubled itself in the last eight years.

Following a vote it was agreed to attend the first Council meeting of the new year and "not ask, but demand" a reduction in municipal expenses. The association also plans a reduction in school taxes.

Bedecked Yule Trees Taken By Thieves

Police have been asked to search for two Christmas trees, with lights and trimmings, stolen from in front of C. A. Rehtmeyer, Inc., Friendship and Euclid avenues, Christmas morning.

The trees were planted a week ago intended as permanent decorations to be trimmed each Christmas. The wiring was cut and the evergreens dug up.

MONTOUR WINS RIGHT OF WAY

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Columbiana County Commissioners yesterday ordered the abandonment of a 30-foot strip of land next to an old iron bridge spanning Beaver Creek and the destruction of the bridge to provide additional right of way for the new branch of the Montour Railroad, now under construction.

The branch is to run from Negley, O., to Smith's Ferry, Pa., giving the steel producers of the Youngstown district a river-rail route down the Ohio River.

Montour interests on December 10 won a 21-day stay on a court order requiring that they answer a petition filed by the Pennsylvania Railroad, which objected to construction of the line on the grounds that Montour had not secured permission of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Construction has been speeded in an effort to complete the branch before the legal proceedings could prevent Montour from putting the line in operation.

Peacemaker Beaten By Bottle War Gang

Frank Reido, 24, of 1224 North avenue, found beaten by hoodlums at Fifth avenue and Brady street, early today told police he had sought to remonstrate with the gang against hurling milk bottles. Reido's injuries, consisting mostly of lacerations to his face, were treated at Mercy Hospital.

CITY MANAGER BILL SUPPORT ASKED

Civic and trade organizations in Pittsburgh have been asked by the Municipal Charter Committee to co-operate in an effort to obtain passage by the Legislature of a bill to permit Pittsburgh to adopt the city manager form of government.

F. C. Irish, chairman of the committee, explained today that the bill to be presented is not mandatory legislation, but only provides that the new system would become operative when approved by the voters. Civic organizations are invited, not only to adopt resolutions approving this proposal, but to communicate their wishes to legislators.

A bill of the same nature was defeated in the 1931 session of the Legislature through influence of the Republican machine of Allegheny County. In the coming session Pittsburgh Democratic legislators have agreed to support the legisuation, and a city manager bill will be introduced by John J. Kane, South Side member.

As a companion to the city manager plan, the Municipal Affairs Committee is including a provision for the proportionate representation system of electing members of City Council, which permits minorities a voice in public affairs.

BLAMES MUSIC FOR STABBING

James Pratt, 48, Negro, was to be turned over to the Coroner today in connection with the fatal stabbing of Julia May Jiles, 35, Negro, during a Christmas celebration in her home, 1624 Colwell street, according to homicide detectives.

Captured yesterday in a house in Second avenue, Homestead, as he was about to start for Washington, D. C., his former home, Pratt admitted killing the woman, detectives reported. They quoted him as saying:

"I knew something serious was going to happen when that phonograph started to play music after I tried for months to make it play."

Pratt was alleged to have told detectives he stabbed the woman with a pair of shears when she tried to stab him with a dagger.

He said the plane will become a permanent exhibit in the aviation section of the institute's new museum.

Lawyer Wishes He Was Twins In This Case

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Dec. 29.—(INS.)—Louis P. Zerweck, state's attorney of St. Clair County, today found himself in the unusual position of prosecutor and defense attorney in the same case.

Zerweck, as attorney for Elwood Rose, 27-year-old Negro sentenced to the electric chair for murder, obtained a new trial for his client. As the newly elected state's attorney, Zerweck would be forced to prosecute Rose.

Zerweck said today that he would withdraw from the case and appoint one of his assistants as prosecutor.

Sharpsburg Council Shuns Controversy

A large crowd of Sharpsburg citizens, anticipating a lively session of Sharpsburg Council last night over the unexplained increase of $300 in the November payroll, was disappointed. The matter was not mentioned.

Councilman Lawrence Bragg, who discovered the increase and demanded an explanation, said later the matter had been adjusted satisfactorily. He said extra men had been employed in the water and light plant in November.

CITY MAY SET SAFETY MARK

Pittsburgh, continuing its lead in the National Traffic Safety Contest, may set a new low in accidents for the year. A greater percentage reduction in accidents than in any other large American city for the first 10 months of the year has been revealed here, according to the Better Traffic Committee.

Ten months' figures are 105 fatalities, against 145 in 1931, a drop of 27.6 per cent. Baltimore is Pittsburgh's nearest rival, with a reduction of 18.4 per cent.

Yule Echoes Heard in Filmland

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 29.—Routine's off for today. Let's try to recapture some impressions of a hectic week-end.

What was that funny story Jerry Horwin told about a well-known scenario writer? Oh, yes, the chap spent Christmas Eve day making the rounds of all the studios where he had worked in the last five years. By midnight, his one ambition was to get home and fall into bed. Somehow he got there and plunked between the sheets without even the formality of taking off his clothes. Just as he was sinking into sleep, the night air suddenly was filled with Christmas carols. A truckload of children were serenading their teacher next door.

With splitting head, the writer lay and listened. He stood it for five minutes, then rolled out of bed and stuck his head out the window.

"Hey there," he shouted, "do you know 'Under a Harlem Moon'?"

THE LIFE OF REILLY

Nice party Frank Lloyd gave Christmas Day. He leads the life of a country gentleman, big white colonial house, large grounds sloping down to a stream and walnut orchards all around. Hollywood is miles away and it's quiet.

Miss Wynyard

Many of the players in Frank's new picture, "Cavalcade," drove out to help him celebrate Christmas. Among them the coolly beautiful Diana Wynyard, Herbert Mundin and John Warburton. Lionel Belmore, as rotund and as hearty as ever, was there, too. First I've seen of him in some time. Flobelle Fairbanks asked me how to gain 10 pounds. Fancy that from an actress.

HILARITY ON TAP

For hilarity, you couldn't top Roscoe Ates' open house on Christmas Day and far into the night. Jean Malin, the blond giant who keeps them roaring at the Club New Yorker, climbed on a chair and entertained. A lugubrious brunette thought he wasn't very funny.

"I'm only funny when I'm getting paid for it," flipped Malin.

Most of the nightclub talent in town was at Roscoe's. He's one of the steady patrons of the late spots, you know.

Everybody who didn't know her was asking the name of Mrs. Roy Del Ruth. Very stunning she looked, all in white. And with another diamond bracelet fresh from Santa Claus.

Quietest person at the party was Rochelle Hudson. Without that red dress and hat, you wouldn't have known she was there. Jack Oakie was in his usual sweatshirt. Sorry, I couldn't go with you to Stu Erwin's, Jack. We probably would have awakened the baby, anyway. Also, apologies for the other places I didn't get to. What happened to all those hours, anyway?

Miss Hudson.

Hello!

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Gertrude Lang, who will be seen as a German barmaid in "The Student Prince," coming Monday to the Nixon, looks the part as far as teutonic flaxen hair is concerned. From the audience, it resembles a theatrical wig, but it's Miss Lang's own hair, reaching to the waist. What, no bob? "The Student Prince," to be presented at three evening and one matinee performances, will be followed by another popular operetta, "Blossom Time," which, from the number of times it has been presented in every city, must be credited with being the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" of musical shows. Seats for these New Years week attractions are now on sale in the b. o.

Among plays in the immediate future of the George Sharp Players in the Pitt is "Lysistrata," written by a Pittsburgh boy, Gilbert Seldes. Of course, he had the help of Aristophanes. It will require an augmented cast, and is listed for presentation the week of January 9. Margaret Anglin this week is engaged in rehearsals with Mr. Sharp's troupers in preparation for appearing as guest star in the Pitt next week, when the bill will be "The First Mrs. Fraser."

* * *

The Fulton begins its new week with the presentation of "The Thrill of Youth" as its screen feature. Heading the cast are June Clyde and Allen Vincent.

Best Pittsburgh Actress Once Sent to Bed After Curfew

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Does anybody realize who is today the foremost Pittsburg actress on stage or screen—foremost in popular favor and real versatility? Hardly one in 500 will know that Aline MacMahon is a Pittsburgh girl, but she is. Perhaps McKeesport may also claim her, since she is a niece of the late Sophie Irene Loeb. Aline just at present is receiving many favorable notices for her work as the plain and acid-tongued wife of Silver Dollar Martin, in the new picture of early mining days in Colorado.

Edward G. Robinson plays the leading role in "Silver Dollar," which is the title of the picture. But Aline MacMahon's acting is one of the features of a very fine production. It will also be remembered that Aline was the nurse in "Life Begins," and the nurse was nearly the best thing in that picture.

Mr. Seibel

She has been on the legitimate stage for years. She almost created a national sensation when she was to be starred in "Maya," a fine French play stopped before it had a real chance to start, some highly sensitive censor taking objection to its realism. I saw her shortly before in "Spread Eagle," a play about an imaginary war with Mexico, in which she did magnificent work.

There is no doubt about it—Aline MacMahon is the foremost Pittsburgh actress of the present generation, judging by her work and her popular acclaim. Her mother was Jennie Simon, who married a New York newspaperman. Her grandfather was a watchmaker, and a man of restless mind, who encountered the usual misfortune of geniuses. All the family intelligence seems to have been diffused through Aline's personality.

CURFEW FOR ALINE

And I remember when Aline, before being sent to bed, was dragged into the party by her mother and made to recite "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight." Immediately after the recitation, which the party patiently and politely approved, curfew would ring for Aline. Which again shows that ability is developed by following the old maxim, "Early to bed and early to rise."

Besides not being able to name the foremost Pittsburgh actresses of the present generation, most people will fail to identify the foremost one of the generation that's passing. That was—and is—Alma Kruger, who was leading woman with E. H. Sothern for several seasons. She is a Pittsburgh girl from lower Allegheny. Her father was very prominent in German amateur theatricals here. She herself is probably the most eminent princess of the Byron W. King royal families. The last time I saw her was in a Theater Guild performance in New York, and her name is frequently in distinguished casts with Eva LeGallienne and others.

ALMOST THE BEST

Speaking of "best" actors, James Agate, dramatic critic of the London Sunday Times, mentioned one the other day in writing about "Another Language," which seems to be a big hit in its English adaptation. Agate, complaining that one of the players has nothing to do in the play, refers to him as "Marcus Barron, almost the best actor, living or dead, in the entire world." As I had never heard of Marcus Barron, much less seen him, I could not dispute Agate's estimate. But it started me on the favorite pastime of selecting the 10 best of everything—whether beautiful words or favorite fiction. And I made a list of the 10 best actors, as their names occurred to me.

The names that occurred were Alfred Lunt, Robert Loraine, Walter Hampden, F. J. McCormick, Walter Connolly, Philip Merivale, George Arliss, Fritz Leiber, Lionel Barrymore and Paul Muni. I was sure I had forgotten half a dozen others, and inside of 10 minutes I thought of A. E. Matthews and Arnold Korff.

So there you are, it is impossible to make a list of the 10 best actors, because there are at least a dozen. Almost any reader can make it a baker's dozen at once.

All this was apropos the inclusion of Mary Pickford among the 12 most famous women. Everybody likes Mary since she kicked her way through "Fanchon the Cricket," in the old silent movies—but being liked is not enough for greatness. But Mary is a social philosopher, as well as a popular actress. She just bought her husband an old-fashioned bar a week or two ago—probably to keep him at home after the Volstead Act is repealed.

THE OTHER MARY

As for acting versatility and force, I should prefer the other Mary, Mary Boland, to La Pickford, any day in the week. Mary Boland is here this week in "Face the Music," with one of her richest and most riotous comedy characterizations. As the wife of the millionaire cop, she is decked like a Christmas tree, and exhibits the amiable intelligence of the tinsel angel on the topmost branch.

There is only one fault to be found with Mary Boland in "Face the Music"—probably owing to the depression, she has fired the fine elephant on which she entered in the investigation scene during the New York run.

Whether the animal ate too much hay, or whether baggage cars and road theaters were too small, is not certain—but the elephant is missing. Instead four husky Herculeses (there's a rare plural) carry her in on a palanquin—which is all right in its way, but does not adequately replace the magnificent White Kumiria, as the King of Siam would have called this pachydern.

Maybe the King of Siam or the property man called that elephant home.

Broadways Of the World

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

HOTEL NOAILLES, MARSEILLES, FRANCE.—I haven't seen any part of this town as I begin my column for today. But that makes little difference. As long as I live, I'll always remember Marseilles with the utmost affection. A clean bed. A warm tub. Good food. People who smile on occasion. And best of all, a barber who understands English and will not shave against the grain!

Simple things, aren't they? And yet they mean so very, very much after a visit to a place like Tunis and two days on a boat that almost defied description. Liking a town, you know, depends entirely upon the people you meet in that spot and the time you have while you're there.

I, for example, am not going to London on this trip. And why not? Simply because, when I was there four years ago, I didn't enjoy myself. The weather was bad. The shows I saw weren't much better. When I went into a night club, I didn't have much fun. I met the wrong people, and they did not appeal to me.

It's for exactly the same reasons that a number of visitors dislike New York. Suppose I were an Englishman and I visited New York for a short period. Suppose I met the wrong people, was overcharged in a night club, saw a bad opening night, got caught in a subway mob, went to a restaurant where the food wasn't right and saw nothing but rain during my entire visit.

How, then, would I feel about New York? I'd go back to England and tell them exactly what I thought. If my observations were unpleasant, what of it? If those things happened to me, those are the things to tell.

That's what I've been trying to do in all these columns, and that's what I'll continue to attempt. When I like something, I'm saying so. And when I don't like something, I'm saying so, too.

I think people are just a little foolish to be too vain about the cities in which they reside. I love New York, and the further I get from it, the more I realize how much I miss it. Yet I fail to go into hysterics when I meet anyone who tells me he thinks New York is not so hot. Why should I?

After all, that man is entitled to his opinion. Maybe the chap was gypped right and left during his stay in our city, and formed his opinion because of some unfortunate experiences.

It was Mr. Fred Knobel, my diplomatic friend in Tunis, who gave me a grand answer when I complained bitterly to him about the trouble I was having—and had had—with the customs officials in his city.

"Not only do I think they're unfair," I said bitterly, "but I think they purposely set out to misunderstand. I'm not a crook, nor am I visiting Tunis to take advantage of someone. The best I can do is to leave some money here. And isn't that to their advantage?

"I've told you what they did to my clothes and how they examined every article as though I were the worst type of smuggler. Does that make sense? Must I go through all this nuisance just because I'm a visitor to a foreign port? I'm an American—but must they take advantage of me just because of that fact?"

Mr. Knobel shrugged his shoulders.

"I went to America once without a diplomatic passport," he smiled. "Shall I tell you of my experience with the New York customs officials when I landed there? Do you want me to tell you what happened to me—a foreigner—when I started to unpack my baggage?"

I said nothing more. Not a word. . . .

The entire thing reminds me of the story of Al Woods, the theatrical producer, when he made one of his periodic visits to London some years back. Al has always been known for the fact that he will catch a boat to Cherbourg or Southampton at an hour's notice. For no rhyme or reason, he would get up from the dinner table, say "I think I'll go to London"—and in two hours, he would be sailing.

Well, on one of these occasions, Woods arrived at Plymouth without having glanced at his passport. When it came time for Al to present his credentials, the English customs officer looked up in amazement.

"What is this, Mr. Woods?" he asked. "Not only have you no visa, but this passport expired eight months ago!"

"That's the kind of office force I have," muttered Al. "I told them to watch those things. What do you want me to do about it?"

The officer was very decent.

"Take a seat over there," he said, motioning to a chair in the corner of the boat's largest reading room. "I'll take care of your case later."

Al sat and sat and sat. The customs officer finished his work, left that boat, visited another, and then returned some three hours later.

As the officer walked by, Al stood up.

"Well, sweetheart," he chirped as he lit a cigar. "What about me? My name is Woods and you told me to sit down over here about three hours ago. I did just as you asked.

"So it's okay with me. When I'm wrong, I'm wrong. Just you say the word, tell me what to do and I'll catch the next boat to New York."

The officer shook his head.

"That won't be necessary, Mr. Woods," he smiled. "We don't do things that way over here. How much time did you want to spend in London?"

"No more than three or four days," replied the producer. "All I want to do is to see a couple of shows that I may want to import, and then I'll breeze right back."

The officer nodded and turned to his assistant.

"Stamp Mr. Woods' passport," he asserted, "and give him permission to remain in London for three weeks."

Al said nothing until his passport was stamped. Then he looked glumly at the officer.

"I knew you'd want to get even with me," he observed. "You want me to stay in London for three weeks!"

Should Old Folks Move Out When Girl Has Company?

Should mother and dad stay under cover while Flo entertains her beau?

And will it cramp her style with the boy friend if they don't?

Flo thinks they should, and it does—and how!

Dial in on her blues. Maybe they match your own.

Dear Elsie:

I want to ask you for some help. Will you please write something in your column about these parents of ours who never give us any privacy?

I am the middle one in a family of three children. I want you to understand that I am not wild. I neither drink nor smoke, and I am very, very particular about kisses. It isn't that I do or say anything that I am ashamed of, but when the family will stick around when I am trying to entertain the Boy Friend, it certainly does cramp my style.

We have a lovely home, with nice furniture, but it is one of those apartments where everything is on the same floor. And if the family stays home when I am trying to entertain it sort of gives the impression of being watched.

You can't enjoy yourself like that; so that is why the boy friends and I always go out. Many a time we'd rather stay home, so I could play the part of "charming hostess," but it can't be done—not with father sitting right in the next room playing the radio.

Mother and my sister and brother find something to do in another part of the house, but not he; and with an apartment like this, even with the others in another room—all the rooms open off one another—you feel as though you were being watched. And you know you can't be yourself under conditions like that.

DAD ALWAYS NEAR

Don't you think that mother and dad could go out once in a while, or something, so that I could have some privacy? You don't know what I would give for some! Dad won't even go to bed! There he sits, like a grumpy old bear on a log. And try to move him! He isn't even polite half the time.

Couldn't you write something about these modern apartments and privacy for youngsters? Really, we're not a bad lot. But we have to have some privacy. So we find it o-u-t. Outside the home.

I can't say anything to dad. He immediately says he isn't watching me. All right, supposing he isn't. It isn't that. It's simply that he is forever there, simply embalming everyone with his presence. It just dampens all the careful effects, that's all.

Please write a real good line about this, and hand it out in big doses, the stiffer the better. We youngsters all feel this way, and that is why some of us have apartments of our own—for privacy.

FLO.

CONSIDER PARENTS

And I'm supposed to bust into big, wet tears over that?

Nothing doing, kid. You're getting as many breaks as you're entitled to; and if you can't have a good time and still live in the same house with other people, then there's something wrong with your technique.

Yes, I know you need privacy; and you'd like room to enjoy yourself. But so do and would others. The world isn't being run for exclusive enjoyment of Little Flo. None of us can have a 100 per cent break.

After all, this dad who is such a heavy cramp in your style is paying the rent for that "next room." He has spent some 50 years in hard labor in order to rear you, sister, to your present state of snootiness. And during those 50 years you have cramped his style no end—and been practically a constant pain in the neck. And now you begrudge him the few hours he spends listening to the radio?

Get wise to yourself, youngster. If giving dad a few of the breaks that are coming to him "cramps your style," then you'd better change your style. And as for your Boy Friend—if he can't mix a bit with family life now, then it's a pretty good bet that he won't be much of a treat in family life hereafter.

And here's where I indulge myself in one last grin. Twenty years from now you'll probably be sitting in some "next room," Flo, trying to enjoy yourself after a hard day's work—and I wonder how you'll feel then if some selfish brat pulls a tantrum because you cramp her style!!!

Society Beauties Now Rival Actresses In Male Eyes—Fay King

By FAY KING

Heiresses and actresses have long been rivals.

It has often been discouraging and disheartening to an ambitious mother to see an actress capture a man she had an eye on for her own marriageable daughter.

Until lately, heiresses could not compete with actresses on their own grounds. But in these days it is the custom for the social register and the stage directory to mingle quite freely at times.

The result has been that now quite as many actresses have shed tears to see husbands or sweethearts fascinated and captivated by heiresses as once did heiresses weep to see husbands or sweethearts fascinated and captivated by actresses.

If some society men have preferred actresses, it is certainly true that some society women prefer actors.

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Description Given in Code Message May Help Richard

Lillian tapped thoughtfully upon Marion's code book with her pencil when I asked her if the letter her young daughter had sent by the hands of the kidnapers contained information as to the secret prison of the girls.

"I can't go as far as that," she said. "She evidently has had difficulty in finding code words for some of the things she wishes to tell me, and that's what's tearing me into bits. It has been so long since she wrote that book! How could she have remembered it correctly? And if she made mistakes it would be—well, their very lives might depend upon a single mistaken meaning."

"I don't think it has been so long since she has seen that book," I told her.

"What do you mean?" she manded, wide-eyed.

"Do you remember how much time she and Carolyn spent rummaging in the attic on that last visit?"

"Yes," excitedly.

"I wonder," Lillian said slowly, "if they made a copy of it."

"That's easily found out." I told her. "Of course they didn't carry it around with them on ordinary errands. If they made a copy, it's hidden securely and ingeniously in their room. Mrs. Barnes will make a thorough search of their room if you ask it, and I'll bank on the sapiency of that lady. If it's in the room, she'll find it. She hasn't been head mistress here all these years 'for nuddings.'"

RESUMES STUDY

"By all means ask her the first chance you have," she said.

She turned back to her notes and looked them over.

"The word 'First' means 'above ground,' and the capital letter beginning it means 'house' instead of apartment building. The letter 'r,' shaded more heavily than the other, means 'locked in a room,' and if the 'i' is not dotted and the 't' not crossed—either or both—that means 'upstairs room.'

"'Gentleman,' used instead of 'man,' means 'can see out of window.' 'Lady' instead of 'woman' means 'keeping constant watch.'

"'To' used wrongly means 'can see lake,' and with the 't' heavier, 'in mountains.' Followed by 'too' it means 'big trees' and the number of letters between the words 'to' and 'too' means the number of big trees near or surrounding the lake."

I calculated swiftly, and spoke at the same instant she did: "Six."

"Yes," Lillian nodded, "but now comes the puzzling thing. "The middle letter 'o' in 'too' is heavily shaded, and that means 'one of trees different,' but I can't find anything else that describes it. I don't know whether it means a different kind of tree or that its appearance is different."

MADGE HELPS

"There's a reference to an agreement we once made, and then one other thing. The expression 'we've got' means 'plenty of light.' Well, they're not in the dark, anyway, thank Heaven!"

A sudden thought flashed into my mind.

"Might 'plenty of light' perhaps mean 'tree struck by lightning?'" I asked unsteadily.

She stared at me for the fraction of a second, then struck her hand upon her knee.

"I believe you have it," she said. "There is no word in the book meaning that, although why she didn't think of it, Heaven alone knows. It seemed to me at the time she concocted it that she prepared for every emergency."

"Then," I said, summing up, "we may believe that they are locked in a room on the second floor of a house, large or small—she didn't say, did she?"

"Let me look," Lillian said quickly. "Yes, I overlooked that. If the 't' in 'first' is unusually small and trails a little below the line, it means 'small house.'"

"Then it means that they can watch from a window undisturbed all day long—and will—and that they can see a mountain lake with six large trees near it, one of which has been struck by lightning. That ought to narrow down our search. Why, Dicky may have seen that very place today!"

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FCLLETT

Liver spots bothering you? Sponge them with peroxide to which a few drops of lemon juice have been added. This combination also acts like magic on freckles of the fleeting sort. Warts pack up and depart if touched with castor oil every day for a week. Moles should not be tampered with by inexperienced fingers. The physician who specializes in diseases of the skin will banish them by means of the X-ray.

Trail along a busy buy-way and note the faces of lady shoppers. They're out stalking glad rags, having packages sent home from which they will extract sartorical glory. They're money flingers, yet they don't look particularly happy. Faces are tense. Brows furrowed. Lip corners pulled down. They're not face conscious as they should be. Face lifting should go on all the time and without the help of the surgeon. A change of thought does it, chasing out a worry thought by putting a pleasant one in its place. The plainest phiz can be glorified, made radiant, by expression.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Aches as a Weather Barometer

Rheumatism is one disorder that has baffled science for a long time. It used to be regarded as belonging exclusively to the aged.

Don't you remember how your grandparents complained of their "rheumatiz"? Their aches and discomforts were used as a barometer to forecast rainy weather. Contrary to the old belief, the disease afflicts children as well as adults.

Dr. Copeland

Rheumatism is an inflammation of the muscles or joints of the body. It is a painful condition, often confused with neuritis, arthritis and gout. Though great advances have been made in the study of rheumatism, the exact germ responsible for it is not known.

The acute form of rheumatism is spoken of as "acute rheumatic fever." Intense pain and high fever confine the sufferer to bed for many weeks. Though the disease itself is seldom fatal, its complications may continue as a menace to health and, in some instances to life.

The danger of complications can be avoided by the early recognition of the disease. The patient will be kept in bed and follow his doctor's orders.

Involvement of the heart is one of the things that may happen in acute rheumatic fever. Too many children are annually disabled by the heart complications.

I am sorry to say that the diagnosis of rheumatism is often made after the damage has been done. This is particularly true in the case of children. If your child complains of pain in the arms, legs or joints, do not ignore it.

There is no such thing as a "growing pain." The pain commonly given this name is not due to a child growing too fast. Very likely the pain is due to rheumatism and it demands investigation.

Many cases of rheumatism can be traced to centers of pus infection, such as infected teeth, tonsils, or nasal sinuses. It is important to get rid of all the possible causes of trouble. To this end careful search will be needed. The teeth may not ache, yet when they are X-rayed, definite signs of decay and infection are found. The X-ray is of value, too, in revealing a diseased gall bladder, infected sinuses, chronic appendicitis and other disturbances which may be responsible for the rheumatic pains.

The diet should be simple, nutritious and easily digested. It should include milk, cream, butter, eggs and other foods which carry vitamin A.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

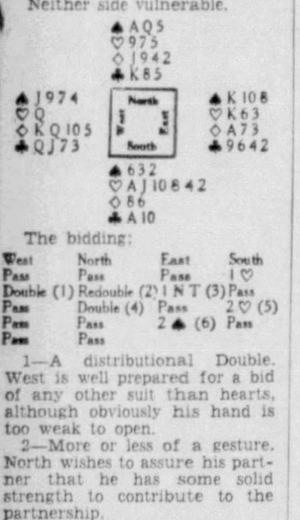
An Emergency Bid

The new laws of Duplicate Bridge were promulgated a little more than a month ago, shortly after the new laws of Rubber Bridge. The lawmakers who devote their attention to Duplicate scoring decided to introduce an innovation by providing a bonus for any part-score—probably the most revolutionary change that could be conceived in Duplicate play, as it requires not only defending against game bids, but against part-scores as well. The result, however, has seemed to be fairly satisfactory, but one of the hands from the recent American Bridge League tournament illustrates the new problems presented to a Duplicate player with telling force.

The hand was:

West—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♡
Double (1)	Redouble (2)	1 N T (3)	Pass
Pass	Double (4)	Pass	2 ♡ (5)
Pass	Pass	2 ♣ (6)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—A distributional Double. West is well prepared for a bid of any other suit than hearts, although obviously his hand is too weak to open.

2—More or less of a gesture. North wishes to assure his partner that he has some solid strength to contribute to the partnership.

3—East is unwilling to bid on a four-card club suit headed by the 9, and yet his hand does contain 2 honor-tricks. He must find a bid, and the notrump response, which under the circumstances discloses some strength, appeals to him as best.

4—A very good double, and North and South were in the right contract at this spot.

5—South's hand is very weak in view of his Fourth Hand Opening, and he fears that a contract of one notrump may be made.

6—East correctly reasons that his partner's Double of the Opening bid guarantees a minimum of four spades and that if the spade distribution is at all favorable, he can take a set of 1 trick, not vulnerable, to prevent a part-score by his opponents, which will net them at least 160 points.

In the play, South opened his doubleton diamond, which East won with the Ace and returned a heart. South won with the Ace, and now laid down the Ace of clubs, following with his last club when North played the 8. North won with the King and returned a club, which South ruffed, and, for lack of something better, returned a small heart. This was ruffed in the Dummy, and the 9 of spades led. North played small, East played the 8, and the trick held. Another trump was led, and North now went up with the Ace, but this was the last for North and South, and East was thus able to make his contract of two spades.

It was the last hand of a set, and the South player was curious about the trump cards held by East, so he drew the East hand from the board and spread it on the table.

"Where is the fourth spade?" West asked curiously.

"A fourth spade?" East replied. "Since when have you thought that I could permit myself the luxury of four trumps in a match-point game?"

TODAY'S QUESTION

South bids one club, West bids one spade, and North passes. What should East bid with the following hand?

♠ K Q 3 ♡ K Q 4 2 ◇ A Q J 10 9 8 ♣ —

Answer: Two clubs—an Overcall of the opponents' bid suit and a Forcing bid. A successful game contract appears certain and a Slam is possible if West and East are free to exchange information as to the fit of the combined hands without fear of a pass short of game.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Autographing Pictures

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

I am to be graduated next month and I would like you to tell me the correct thing for me to write in the lower part of my graduating pictures which I am sending to my aunts and uncles and cousins, also my sister, and my grandparents. I don't know exactly what to write.

R.

Are you sure that you would like to autograph your photographs? There are many people, you know, who consider that an un-autographed photograph is more personal than one that is autographed. And I'm inclined to agree with them. However, this is such a personal question that we must decide about it for ourselves.

The pleasantest form of autographing, I think, is the use of the names only. Then the receiver is given the opportunity of reading into the written name and into the loved handwriting the message that he or she wishes. Like this:

To Aunt Mary
from
Betty

Or, if you prefer a more articulate message, then:

To my dear Grandmother from her loving Betty

Or:

With dearest love to Cousin Jane
from
Betty

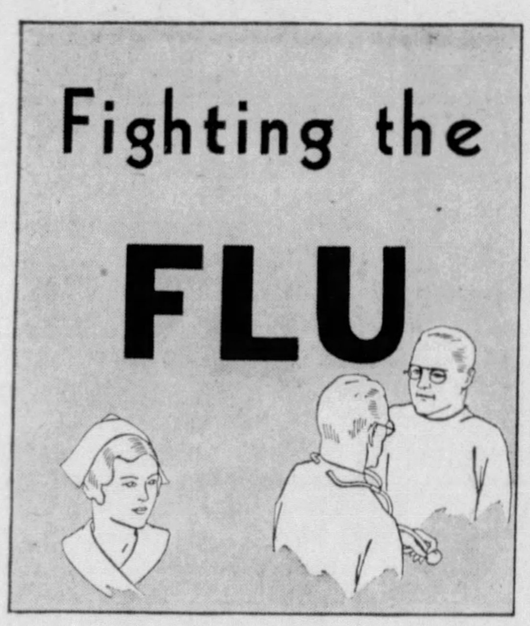
Fighting the FLU



Common Sense Suggestions to Readers of the Sun-Telegraph

Influenza is going its deadly rounds. Take every possible precaution to avoid coming down with the flu. These simple rules are based on sound medical opinion:

Get lots of sleep and eat wisely; it is usually the run-down man or woman who succumbs easiest to germs.

Keep the system alkaline; an acid condition invites colds and other weakening disorders.

Keep the bowels open so poisons will not accumulate and lower your resistance.

Get plenty of fresh air; breathe through the nose. Avoid any close contact with others; remember, flu is highly contagious.

Don't dose yourself with a lot of medicine. You can alkalinize your system against colds with a little Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. If you should catch cold, take some Bayer Aspirin; if your throat feels at all sore, crush the tablets in water and gargle. But if you detect any sign of flu, or even suspect it, get to bed at once and call your physician.

TECHNOCRACY CALLED SLOGAN OF NEW LIFE

Editor's Note—Following is the third of a series of articles on technocracy, the new theory of government announced recently which has aroused international interest and controversy.

By M. C. ELMER
Professor of Sociology, University of Pittsburgh.

People are attracted by a slogan. If that slogan carries with it an element of truth which is partly recognized, a wave of enthusiasm follows. People demand stimulation, and the routine of life is perked up by a phraze that seems to crystallize a half-formed thought.

Technocracy is a very good example. We all have recognized the changes that have taken place, but we did not have the flow of words to describe them.

We all know that the average man on a small income is now living on a plane above that of the very wealthy of 50 years ago. We can compare the energy of carrying a letter from Pittsburgh to Denver by pony express or by airplane.

Some of us who have worked in the woods can compare the energy required for warming a house 50 years ago and doing it today with an electric controlled gas furnace.

Technocracy?

Yes, call it that if you want to. It merely represents the great increase in possibility of the average individual having some of the things he has dreamed about. It merely means an automotive vehicle for everyone, instead of a horse and carriage for a few.

It merely means a nation of educated, comfortably provisioned democratically controlled individuals—instead of a nation of grovelling starving serfs. It merely means that great social evolution which has been actively functioning for the past hundred years.

Technocracy? A valuable idea crystallized so that the rank and file who want a slogan to snap them out of the lethargy of depression can grasp it. It may help us to recognize what our present status is compared with a previous period, and inspire us to look forward to continued adjustment to social change.

MOTHER, 80, ILL ASKS FOR SON

An aged mother, seriously ill, appealed to police today in an effort to find her son, from whom she has not heard for more than four years.

The mother, Mrs. Cecelia Chippeaux, 80, of Leisenring, who lay in a coma at the home of a daughter at Isabella, repeatedly asked for her son, Bailey Chippeaux, 35, reported to have been seen in the downtown district several weeks ago.

The missing man is described as about 5 feet 10 inches in height and of a sandy complexion.

Perfect for Matrons

Pattern 2488

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

by Anne Adams

The matter of "knowing how" is shown here in a perfect frock for the matron who is no longer slim. Flattering revers set off by a dainty lace vestee dominate the bodice while the skirt boasts slenderizing seaming with inverted pleat, just to be "different." A snug hip yoke and unbelted waistline are doubly becoming and, of course, the frock wouldn't be complete without a new sleeve treatment. Lovely for satin or crepe.

Pattern 2488 may be ordered only in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards of 39-inch fabric and ⅜ yard 18-inch lace. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with this pattern.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

YULETIDE MEAL 'APPETIZER'

Two days of Christmas feasting apparently did not dull a lot of appetites hereabouts, according to managers of eating places in the downtown district.

A. Albert, maitre d'hotel at the William Penn, and Miss Christine McKeever, manager of the Smithfield Grill, found, in fact, the Christmas feasts merely whetted tastes of some for food. Both said their business has increased since Christmas.

Said Albert:

"The week of Christmas is the biggest week in December."

He explained during this period the "college crowd" spends money for food they would not think of ordering at other seasons.

Miss McKeever said:

AIR TRANSPORT GAIN SEEN

A prediction that commercial aviation, as represented by the air transport lines, will have established a record of increased business in spite of business and industrial inactivity when the books for 1932 are closed, was made today by Richard W. Robbins, president of Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc.

Robins based his prediction on a report of the Aviation Securities Committee of the Investment Bankers Association, and pointed to recent expansion of his own company as indicative of confidence the industry has in itself. A 24-hour coast-to-coast passenger service and additional passenger and express service into Detroit, Toledo and the Great Lakes region was a part of the expansion.

VET AND FAMILY APPEAL FOR AID

A partly disabled veteran, ill from the effects of war gas, appealed today for transportation for himself, his wife and their child to California, where relatives offer a farm home.

The father, Monte E. Denning, 42, who served in Battery F, 107th Field Artillery, 28th Division, A. E. F., has been unemployed since last March. He had worked as a clerk and as a mechanic.

A friend has assured half of the traveling expenses, including food and lodging. The American Legion of the North Boroughs, Post No. 116, also is sponsoring his cause.

TRAFFIC COURT RECEIPTS LOW

A report issued by the city traffic court reveals collections this year are $25,000 behind the 1932 budget estimates. Up to December 15, when the last collections were recorded by the city controller, the total for 11 months amounted to $47,489.75, a monthly average of about $4,300. Even with a rise during the remainder of the month it is estimated by Traffic Magistrate J. Scott Morgan that the year's receipts will still be $20,000 short of the $75,000 budget estimates.

While the report was being compiled, city officials were considering an appeal from the decision of Judge M. A. Musmanno that $100,000 in fines from delinquent automobile tags could not be collected under the law.

POOR BOARD ENDS COUNTY RELIEF ASSISTANCE

POLITICS
65 Democrats Can Do Much at Session
By MARK SHIELDS

Joseph F. Guffey, Roosevelt chief in Pennsylvania, Democratic County Chairman David L. Lawrence and other leading Democrats apparently have high hopes of maintaining an approximate cohesion among the 65 Democrats who will sit in the next lower House of the Legislature. That is a plain deduction from the pre-session activity of the Democrats, with their state and local caucuses, the selection of a steering committee, and their plan for preliminaries next Monday to the convening of the session Tuesday.

Mr. Shields

With as much dignity as Republicans, the Democrats will caucus next Monday night. They will select a speakership candidate, Representative Wilson G. Sarig, of Berks County, just as Republicans will fix upon Representative Grover Talbot, of Delaware County, who will be elected.

Democrats to Go Far in Caucus

But the Democrats seem prepared to go much further in their caucus. If they did not there would be no point to the scheduled meeting Monday afternoon of their steering committee, at which, in addition to legislative members, there will be present Democratic political leaders. The assumption is that a complete legislative program will be laid before the caucus in the evening, inspired by this committee on conference with leaders outside the Legislature, and a pledge will be exacted of strict adherence throughout the session.

A bloc of 65 acting cohesively can accomplish much. It can leave an indelible impress on legislation, particularly in view of the fact that the Republican membership is separated into Pinchot and organization factions, as far—or farther—apart in their conception of political principles as are Democrats and Republicans.

Even a solid phalanx of 50—which is more apt to be the residuum of Democratic strength as the session wears on—can exert a potent force.

Republican leaders, through various blandishments, are confident they will be able to wean from the Democratic standard about 15 members.

Precedent Points to Guffey Being Consulted

They profess a confidence that they will get some, if not all, of these apostates on the first day of the session, when the controversial subject of whether the Speaker shall be deprived of his authority to name committees arises.

It is argued by the organization heads that, because of their local control in so many counties, they will be able to offer more in the way of patronage reward than will Mr. Pinchot, who also will seek to attract Democrats to his pet legislative projects.

But both Republican wings reckon without certain political emoluments which Mr. Guffey can partition. There are, including big and little jobs, several hundred federal positions within the gift of a national administration, and every precedent points to Mr. Guffey being consulted on these by President-elect Roosevelt, whether they are in Allegheny County, Mr. Guffey's home, Philadelphia, or the smallest county in the state.

G. O. P. in Poor Spot To Dig Up Bait

These jobs are a most attractive cement with which to hold together a legislative group, especially as some know they are only serving one term and will wish to step from the Assembly halls to federal place.

Furthermore, the Republican organization has never in history been in such poor position to dig up bait. It will lack the patronage of Washington, or Harrisburg, and of the county government of Allegheny. In the past it has been without one upon occasion, but never in recent history without all three.

True, in expectation of electing an organization governor two years hence, it can hold out promises, but politics in this state is in such a condition of flux that no one may say who will be the next governor. Even if he is organization, no one may say from which branch of the organization, and promises made now by one organization leader might go to a totally unsympathetic source for redemption two years hence.

Long and Bitter Session Looms

The whole picture favors the efforts of the Democratic leaders to retain their alignment—unless they themselves make some deals with the organization. That they disclaim any intention of doing, promising that with at last an opportunity to build up respect for the Democratic party in the state, to establish it as a force to which the voters can turn for redress in hopefulness, they do not intend to enter into any discreditable entanglements.

Certainly the legislative program adopted by the Democrats is attractive on the surface. Its agenda, particularly the decision to work for the abolition of all county fee offices, lends credence to the statements of the leaders.

Out of the conflict of parties and factions looms a long and bitter session, with such plain speaking, such ventilation of principles on the floor of both Senate and House, that the public seems to have ahead the best chance in years to see just how its government works.

12 MEN FREED ON HOLDUP CHARGES
Failure by Victims To Identify Them Ends Prosecution

Twelve men, held by the county detectives as suspects in street car and gasoline station holdups, were discharged today when victims were unable to identify them.

Five suspected of holding up a gasoline station in North Braddock also were discharged.

They gave their names as R. K. McCauley, 28, of 220 Delaware avenue; Harry Quirico, 25, of 1252 Fifth avenue; Thornton Williams, 26, of 1001 Fourth street, and Howard Betts, 22, of 1204 Morrell avenue, all of East McKeesport, and Paul Wright, 22, of 535 Larimer avenue, Turtle Creek.

KLINE JURY 'FIX' CASES ENDING

BUTLER, Pa., Dec. 29.—The trials of defendants indicted for alleged tampering with the veniremen in the prosecution of Mayor Charles H. Kline and Bertram L. Succop, former Pittsburgh supplies director, were nearing an end today.

The final defendant, Roy C. Aiken, Bakerstown garageman, who pleaded no defense to the indictment and was the state's chief witness in the trial of Robert J. Cunningham, Pittsburgh contractor, is still to be called for sentence. Cunningham was acquitted by a jury yesterday after six hours' deliberation.

Henry Ford to Fete Buchmanite Chiefs

MONTREAL, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Henry Ford will entertain members of the Oxford Group, a movement urging the application of Christian principles to every day life, at Dearborn, Mich., tomorrow, Dr. Frank N. B. Buchman, of Oxford, England, the leader of the group, said here.

Following the conclusion of their convention here, members of the group will go to Dearborn, Mich., for a three-day stay.

Kitten Pushing Spool Prompts Riot Call

CINCINNATI, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—"There's a riot at McMillan and Woodburn avenue," a man shouted over the telephone to police headquarters.

With sirens screaming, three squad cars rushed to the scene. They found more than 50 persons watching a kitten push a spool of thread across the sidewalk.

JOSEPH NOWAK, JR.

Baby Joseph, 15 months old, given into the custody of his mother, Mrs. Mildred Nowak, 1423 East street, by Judge William H. McNaugher's ruling: "The mother is the natural custodian of a child of such years."

SHOES FOR POOR HELD SHODDY

Miss Eleanor Hanson, secretary of the Family Welfare Association, said today that her office would investigate complaints that several dealers are furnishing poorly made shoes to the needy under city contracts. It is estimated that 35,000 pairs of shoes have been furnished through the appropriation of $50,000 made by City Council in October, while a similar number are now being distributed.

Decision to make an investigation came after a pair of shoes, worn only two weeks, had been turned over to City Controller James P. Kerr. They were said to have been of poor quality.

REALTY HEADS PLAN SCHOOL COSTS AUDIT
Refusal of Tax Cut Spurs Action; Aaron May Draw Reply

The executive committee of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League has decided to employ auditors to investigate costs of school administration in Pittsburgh, according to I. Leonard Aronson, chairman.

This action follows the refusal of the Board of Public Education to change the 11¾ mills tax rate for 1933. The league had been one of the organizations which had petitioned for a reduction.

COMMITTEE PLANNED

A committee of five, including two attorneys, was to be named today by the league, according to Aronson. He said:

"Our purpose is to protect the rights of the property owners, through legal action or otherwise."

A report from the committee is expected within 15 days, Aronson declared.

Possible reply to Marcus Aaron's defense of the school board at a meeting of the Rotary Club yesterday, in which he branded critics of the board as "seekers after special privilege" was awaited today.

Aaron, School Board chairman, yesterday stressed the failure of the Coyne committee investigating the cost of municipal government to extend its audit into other school districts of the county than

Roxy Should Teach Congress To Keep Step
By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

The boys are pulling and tugging like Volga boatmen. Say, a legislator is a queer bird. We should be represented in Washington by Roxy's ushers. At least, those kids know how to drill together.

What's happened to this session in Washington? The House is shadow boxing with the inevitable while the Senate is trying to bring back big time vaudeville.

Speaker Garner had to threaten to arrest absent members of his congregation. If he cannot get a quorum he will take a chain gang.

Glass Makers Speculate on Style For Mugs If Beer Should Return

MISS ELEANOR SCOTT

A passing peep into the expectant glass industry—the "bar ware division." Miss Scott's holding a Weiss stein (80-ounce!), while the one Miss Dickinson's holding is just another mug. However, the foremost one in the center is "The Pittsburgher." This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

MISS LaVERNE DICKINSON

Trend Awaited by Industry; 80-Ounce Drink Recalled

While the glass industry prepares for the return of beer, manufacturers of bar ware are wondering what the popular fancy in beer mugs will be.

This, be it known, is of more than passing moment. In the good old days, a beer mug was something more than a receptacle for beer.

It became a badge of the house or the host. Something of the sort is true today.

CAUTIOUS ON PREDICTIONS

The glass industry is rather cautious about predictions as to what affect the return of beer will have on its business. Authorities estimate the beer bottle needs of the country will be between five and six million gross a year, if and when beer is legalized.

BOTTLES ORDERED

The consensus is that business for bar glassware in the last three years has been better than it was in pre-war days, and even repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment would have little affect on the industry. There would, however, be a considerable labor increase in marketing the glass, authorities say.

Some breweries are placing orders for bottles in anticipation of the ultimate legalization of beer. The Owens-Illinois-Fairmont Glass Company yesterday announced receipt of an order for 40,000 gross, for which another melting tank is being prepared. This order will require about 40 days to fill.

The manufacturers of barware, meanwhile, are looking over the styles of yesteryear and trying to gauge the requirements of tomorrow in supplying the beer mug demand. The styles run from the small mug now popular in Pittsburgh speakeasies to the St. Louis beer mug, the Hoffman House and the 80-ounce Weiss.

Gets 3-Year Term On Mann Act Charge

Harry Reitzell, 26, of Buena Vista street, today was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson on a Mann Act charge. He and two others were accused of transporting Pauline Pisano and Agnes Ferich from Pittsburgh to Steubenville September 9.

Charles Stillwell, 21, and Stanley Drummond, 30, were named as Reitzell's co-defendants.

Policeman Wears Spats, Given Monocle, Cane

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Traffic Sergt. Fred C. Short, of the Portland police, came to work with his No. 9's surrounded by a pair of spats. Fellow officers decided the picture had best be completed. So they presented him with a turkey-headed cane and a monocle. Sergt. Short threatens to wear the whole outfit on duty.

BRIDGE PLAYERS OUT FOR TITLE

Pittsburgh's entry in the all-expense-paid national winter contract bridge championship contest in Miami will be selected in an open tournament here next week.

Qualifying matches will be held next Wednesday and Thursday, open to any player, at the Schenley Bridge Club, Schenley Hotel, and the Pittsburgh Bridge Club, William Penn Hotel, and many other clubs and organizations' headquarters. The playoff will be held January 7 in the Schenley Club rooms, using automatic card tables.

Participants must play in both days' sessions, as cumulative scores will be kept for selecting the winner. Entrance fee is $1. Similar tournaments will be held in the principal cities of the country, winners of which will be guests of the Miami-Biltmore Hotel, where the final matches will be held.

Henry J. Bailey, of the Schenley Bridge Club, is chairman of the Pittsburgh tournament committee.

Jobless Aid Ceases Despite Bonding Authority

Assistance to county relief organizations in administering aid to the unemployed has been withdrawn by the Allegheny County Poor Board, it was announced last night. Future activities of the board, which has a bonding power of more than $16,000,000, will be confined to caring for the "poor," it was said.

Attorney Harry W. McIntosh, their counsel and chief adviser, said in explaining the poor directors stand:

"We have decided that we exist only to care for the poor. Any measures taken to care for the unemployed must be taken by the Emergency Association."

The Emergency Association is a clearing house for the city and county relief agencies, and is combined with the County Relief Board which handles state and Federal relief funds in this district.

McIntosh believes a new bill could be introduced in the Legislature in January giving the Poor Board power to sell relief bonds should the Emergency Association meet serious financial barriers. Heads of relief agencies have expressed fear that such action would come too late to aid the unemployed and otherwise needy in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County.

The County Relief Board has notified the state that January's needs in the county will be $1,000,000, or double that of last September. At present there are 42,000 families receiving county aid, of which 22,000 are outside the city.

JOE VOLPE HELD ON RUM CHARGE

Joe Volpe had been held for court today on charges of violating the prohibition laws, the outgrowth of a raid in Wilmerding, December 23.

State police were dissatisfied when they saw their charge changed in the office of Justice of the Peace John T. Small, of East McKeesport, to one of keeping a disorderly house, with Volpe drawing a $50 fine from Burgess F. W. Bishop, of Wilmerding. The officers made a new information before Justice of the Peace Bernard Volk, of Versailles Township. Volpe was released in $1,000 bail furnished by Joseph Lagorga, of 318 State street, Wilmerding.

County detectives meanwhile continued an investigation of reported charges that Justice Small and Wilmerding police had attempted to collect excess costs, and that Small and Constable Sam Wilson, of Wilmerding were splitting fees.

CHINESE BOY BUILDS GLIDER
Monongahela Youth In Successful Flight

MONONGAHELA, Pa., Dec. 29.—Tonny Hong, who doesn't like to work in the laundry, feels pretty good today.

Tonny took his glider up for the first time—up once, twice, three times—and a crowd of 500 cheered him to the echo.

Tonny and his father, Mun Yee Yu, had fallen out. Mun Yee Yu wanted his son to work in the laundry, to quit wasting time on those peculiar-looking models in the back room.

So Tonny went to live with friends, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Allridge. And for 16 months in the Allridge cellar he tinkered with things until finally he had built himself a glider which was satisfactory to the Department of Commerce.

Now, at 17, his first glider flight successful, Tonny has ambitions to fly a real plane.

And he probably won't meet any opposition from the family. For, while he was building his glider, Hun Yee Yu came to the dim cellar one day and held aloft the light, the better for his son to fit together the parts.

'BUY AMERICAN' . . . . A POSTER IN USE IN PITTSBURGH TODAY

'Ad' Men, Printers Joining in Hearst Campaign

The "Buy American" campaign sponsored by William Randolph Hearst has been picked up by advertising men and printers.

H. H. Tuttle, of Wilkinsburg, has had printed posters for use by industry and commerce, depicting the advantage of the policy of buying American made goods. Drawn by E. H. Tuttle, the poster shows an American workman, ready to go to work when sufficient orders reach the factory for his employment.

The legend on the poster, with "Buy American" the headline, simply says:

"Buy American and make jobs for America's workmen."

Tuttle said he had visited a number of American business leaders, and many were interested in the project and believe that the program, if accepted by the people and put into motion, would help crush unemployment.

SCHOOL COSTS AUDIT PLANNED

the City of Pittsburgh. Source of funds used to pay for the audit was a mystery to him, he said.

The School Board has held the present system of taxation, based on real estate, to be iniquitous for 21 years, he said, but no real estate owner of Pittsburgh had come to the board's support until recently.

As for charges of lavish expenditures, Aaron said the board has underbuilt, rather than overbuilt, and that teachers' salaries have never been sufficiently high. He lauded teachers' sacrifice in voluntarily cutting their own pay, guaranteed as it was by contract or law.

State Teachers Fight Salary Reduction

HARRISBURG, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's 60,000 teachers have struck back at attempts to reduce their salaries.

They took the position that this state is wealthy enough to support its present public school program, and suggested that to relieve real estate of the burden of school tax, new forms of taxation be devised to carry the school burden.

This action was taken at a meeting of the 600 delegates of the Pennsylvania State Education Association. They adopted unanimously a motion calling for appointment of a committee of five to find untouched sources of wealth which may be taxed to relieve real estate taxation for school purposes, and finance the cost of school operation in the next two years.

The motion said that in view of the threatened curtailment of state appropriations for education by the Legislature it is the duty of the State Education Association and the state to carry on the present school program in the economic crisis. It asserted it is the state's duty to provide adequate aid for financing school districts by some new form of taxation.

"Pennsylvania is not overtaxed for school purposes and there are many sources of untouched wealth in Pennsylvania instead of real estate which may be assessed for educational purposes."

Wreckers Demolishing Old Mill and Furnace

Two Landmarks of Industry Giving Way Here

Under the torch, sledge and shovel, two of the earliest and best-known landmarks of Pittsburgh's industrial era are on their way to destruction. The Soho blast furnace of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation and the Pittsburgh Forge and Iron Company mill, Woods Run, are being torn down.

The Soho furnace, Second avenue and Brady street, was first blown in 1872. It has produced hundreds of thousands of tons of iron. It played a most important role in munition work during the World War. Unused since 1924, it is now being demolished as demoded, and the razing gives employment to many Jones and Laughlin men who would otherwise be idle, officials say.

The mill at Woods Run is said to be the oldest rolling mill in the district. It was built in 1865 by the Pittsburgh Forge and Iron Company, and was recently purchased by the United Iron and Metal Company, now engaged in dismanteling it.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:
BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 29.

Mr. Hoover has gone on South fishing. And from what I read in the papers the Democrats are planning for him, I believe I would just keep right on fishing. I have always believed he made a mistake by not stepping out and turning the whole thing over to 'em on December first. There wasn't a chance of him and them agreeing on anything. It would have been a great big thing to do. Everybody is against the "lame duck" and this is the last one anyhow, so that would have given him an excellent excuse. They couldn't have accused him of quitting. There would have been enough "lame ducks" followed his example that we would now be seeing what plans the Democrats had. As it is now, we have two more months of loggerheading and an extra session of Congress. I would even leave 'em now and say, "Boys it looks easy, maybe you can fix everything before March fourth." The Democrats would have to dig up some schemes mighty fast. Mr. Hoover would come out sitting mighty pretty. There wouldn't be a Republican on the Potomac to lay anything on to.

Yours, WILL.

PROPHET FAILS IN COURT TILT

Mohammed Bey Toulssant, self-styled crystal gazer, pyschologist and linguist, engaged Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in a bit of "crystal gazing" today—and lost.

The man, who admitted his real name was Alexander R. Coleman, was arrested yesterday on a suspicious person charge when detectives said they saw him at Townsend street and Wylie avenue, wearing a bright red turban, black leather coat, blue trousers and gray spats.

Rothenberg today asked him:

"If you are such a great crystal gazer, why didn't you foresee that you were going to be arrested?"

The prisoner said he did, but couldn't get out of town before the detectives came.

Then Rothenberg, who is familiar with several languages, asked him several questions in foreign tongues. Then he said:

"Now I know you are a fakir. I'm not a crystal gazer, but I bet I can tell you what's going to happen to you."

The man was held for investigation.

QUIZ WIDOW OF SLAIN MUSICIAN

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(INS.)—Disclosures of insurance policies and death benefits, amounting to $38,000, today revived investigation of the mysterious "ride" murder of Capt. Edwin O. Schildhauer, popular and handsome high school bandmaster.

The music leader's beautiful brunette widow, Mrs. Frances Schildhauer, who is the beneficiary of the policies and benefits, was to be questioned by Police Capt. John Stege regarding discrepancies in her previous testimony.

At the opening of the Coroner's inquest, Mrs. Schildhauer testified she was uncertain as to the amounts which she would receive as a result of her husband's violent death December 10. She also said she had not visited the bank vaults, where the insurance policies were kept, since the murder of her husband.

DANCER DEATH FEAR FADES

A Springdale mother's fear that her missing daughter, a night club dancer, might prove the victim of the "sack murder" in Rock Island, Ill., turned out groundless today.

Mrs. Caroline Wendler had written to the police of Rock Island that the slain Rose Gendler resembled in name and identification her daughter, Rose, missing for two years. But official identification of Rose Gendler, whose body was found in a sack, dissipated her fear.

Mrs. Wendler's daughter was known in Pittsburgh night clubs as Betty Stencer. She disappeared after an argument at home, the mother told the Bureau of Missing Persons.

VET CHIEF HERE URGES REPEAL

Dr. R. S. auRand, grand chef de gare of the 40 and 8, in Pittsburgh today for a ceremonial program, favored immediate repeal of the prohibition law, assailed the National Economy League and commented on the "Buy American" campaign now in progress.

Of prohibition he said:

"I favor absolute repeal. That will be done as soon as Roosevelt comes into office in March. Repeal will be an economy measure, showing us out of the way of depression."

He branded the National Economy League as being composed of persons who "do nothing but make misstatements." He declared:

"I would like to ask the leaders of the league one question. Are they willing to give up the dole that they are receiving? Admiral Richard E. Byrd receives $4,500 a year for his services in the organization."

On the "Buy American" campaign he said:

"I believe we should buy more American goods. Our goods are of a better quality than those of any other country in the world."

STAR SEES MISS 1933 AS BRAINY BEAUTY

Dresden Doll Type Passe, Comedienne Asserts

The face of Miss 1933 must reflect intellectual beauty as well as feminine allure.

This is the opinion of Mary Boland, foremost light comedienne of the American stage, who is now appearing at the Nixon Theater. She said:

"I cannot make any sweeping statements, but I am sure that the Dresden doll type is no longer in vogue. The face of Miss 1933 must reflect intellectual beauty as well as feminine allure."

To prove her statement, she used the theater as an example—the spot that she has been acquainted with since a girl. She said the day of the girl with only a beautiful figure and face is past. She explained:

"The kids in the show business today are hard workers. The old timers are not in the same class at all. All they had to do was go out on the stage with or without clothing."

She added:

U. S. WINS BIG TAX CASE HERE

Federal Judge R. M. Gibson has ruled in favor of the government in a suit of the Big Lake Oil Company, with offices in the Benedum-Trees Building, to recover $1,565,875.84, with interest, which the company maintained was paid as income taxes to D. B. Heiner, collector of internal revenue during the years 1924 to 1927, inclusive. It was the largest claim ever instituted here for return of income taxes.

The court upheld constitutionality of federal income tax levied on the company, derived from sale of oil and gas produced in Reagan County, Tex., under oil and gas leases and permit from the state on lands set aside by it for the support of the University of Texas.

The company contended the tax interfered with the right of Texas to support a state educational institution. The case was argued before Judge Gibson two months ago. The government was represented by Attorney John A. McCann, of Pittsburgh, special assistant to general counsel, Bureau of Internal Revenue, and the company by Attorney John S. McKelvy, Jr., of Pittsburgh, and Homer H. Brice, of Houston, Tex.

By far the most exciting and fashionable attraction for the smart set today is the wedding of popular Anne Unger Wilson, daughter of the Unger Wilsons, of South Aiken avenue, and William J. Kountz, son of the George McClellan Kountzes. The ceremony is taking place at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Twentieth Century Club, and the Rev. Dr. Boyd Edwards, of the Church of the Ascension, is officiating, before a screen of cibotium ferns and bamboo, lighted by tapers on either side.

The lovely bride is being given in marriage by her father, and is wearing white satin with a train, made with a square neckline and long sleeves. Her veil of tulle is draped from a band of pearls about her head, caught with orange blossoms, and she's carrying a sheaf of calla lilies.

COAT HALF FUR, HALF FABRIC IS PARIS MIDWINTER FAVORITE

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 29.—The coat that is half fur, half fabric, is one of the midwinter favorites in Paris this year. It is a clever combination of the dress-up afternoon and the all-around utility topcoat—a single wrap that serves the duties of two.

PARIS DRESSMAKERS have given a good deal of thought to the designing of this type of coat. In keeping with the times, they have adroitly managed to plan the placing of the fur in such a way that it will receive the minimum of hard wear, while wrists, collar near the throat, hems and back have been reserved for fabric which is more easily replaced.

ONE OF THE most attractive of these models is the Bruyere coat listed as "Joan." It is a coat which adapts itself to practically any type of figure, with sleeves that widen to immense arm-eyes and soften the lines from waist to shoulder. The collar, of the coat fabric is done in the scarf manner and may be wrapped twice around the throat or tied in a huge bow under one's chin.

THE OTHER hat in the sketch, done by Marceyle, is of felt, and though worn at a more conservative angle it gives a tilted effect by means of a draped and twisted felt brim. The entire hat is of felt in a brilliant bright blue that goes well with black or navy.

CUBA TO FACE TROJANS

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Grimes Looks Good Risk. | Fine Record of Kizer.
Meehan Faces Road Jinx. | Jockey Fame Fleeting.
Slab Guess Goes Wrong. | Barry Floor Marvel.

RETENTION OF VET MAY HELP BRUINS

A POSSIBLE ADDED asset in the Cub pitching department for next season is seen in the development that Burleigh Grimes is to be retained for another year of service. Whether or not Manager Charley Grimm's decision resulted from his failure to land the left-hand hurler he was seeking, leaving him in no position to discard any man power, many baseball men believe the retention of Grimes will work out greatly to the advantage of the Chicago club.

Burleigh Grimes

Fully recovered from the effects of his appendicitis operation, Grimes stands an excellent chance of being able to pull a comeback in 1933. He is going to Hot Springs, Ark., in February to take the baths before reporting to Grimm at Catalina Island, and even at the age of 39 the veteran spitballer will be a formidable pitcher if he gets back in shape. In 1932 Burleigh won only six games, his lowest mark in the last 15 years, so that any successful pitching he may do next season, and possibly his improved health will enable him to do a lot of it, will amount practically to a clear gain for the Bruins. The old boy is well worth the new chance that Grimm is giving him.

THE PHILLIES ESTIMATE that 15 games seeped away through the second base hole in their lineup last year, and they hope that the acquisition of Mickey Finn is going to plug it up.

Finn's value is expected to show itself chiefly in an increase in double plays. Only the Reds and Pirates made fewer dual killings than the Phils last season.

DOC GAUTREAU, former Brave second baseman and now manager of the Montreal club in the International League, lauds the judgment of Bill McKechnie in refusing to consider any of the numerous trade offers he received for Bill Urbanski.

Gautreau rates Urbanski as a great hustler and says he's next to Dave Bancroft among the shortstops he has seen in the matter of getting the ball cleanly between hops.

WHEN HE TOOK his Manhattan College football team to Miami for a game there next Monday, Chick Meehan hurled another challenge at an old jinx. In all the time Meehan has been coaching in New York, first at N. Y. U. and then at Manhattan, his teams have won only one out-of-town game. Forbes Field was the scene of the lone triumph abroad, the thrilling number in which N. Y. U. defeated Carnegie Tech, 27 to 13, on November 24, 1928, with Strong, Lassman and Barrabee starring. That was the game in which Lassman was injured so seriously that for a long time it was feared he would not recover. He finally fought his way back to health, only to meet his death by drowning while trying to rescue two boys.

Danny MacFayden

EVEN THE SMARTEST of managers sometimes go wrong in their estimates of pitching values. To get Danny MacFayden from the Red Sox last season, Joe McCarthy not only gave up Henry Johnson and a cash consideration, but threw in Ivy Paul Andrews for good measure.

For the feeble Red Sox, MacFayden had won only one game while losing 10. For the same last place outfit, Andrews during the remainder of the race, won eight victories against six defeats, which was better than MacFayden could do with the world champion Yankees behind him. And four of Andrews' victories were won over first-division clubs. His pitching percentage was .577, while his club's percentage for the year was only .279.

ANNOUNCEMENT THAT THE Yankees have released Third Baseman Bob Gibson to Newark on option, after two years of seasoning in the Eastern League, recalls to New York scribes the fact that Gibson was not always a third sacker. Three years ago he was a crack first baseman at Memphis and joined the Yankees as such.

But Gibson found a guy named Lou Gehrig playing first for the New York club and any notions he may have had of winning that position left him very speedily.

WHEN GIBSON THOUGHT of the long stretch of years ahead during which he'd be sitting around waiting for Gehrig to slow up, he scrapped his first-base ambitions on the spot. The hot corner was then a trouble spot for the Yanks, Joey Sewell not having pulled his comeback, so Bob decided to become a third baseman and he has been playing that position ever since with a view to becoming a regular for Joe McCarthy in some future season. It recalls to Joe Vila the day when Steve Evans reported to the Cardinals as a first baseman. The Giants were playing the Cards that day and Evans, during the fielding practice, stared popeyed at the graceful Fred Tenney doing his stuff around first base. "What's your name, kid?" asked one of the players. "Evans," Steve replied. "Oh, you're a first baseman, aren't you?" "No," said Steve, turning to take another look at Tenney and tossing his first baseman's mitt into a corner of the dugout. "I was—but from now on, I'm an outfielder."

WHEN SUCCESSFUL FOOTBALL coaches are being discussed, Nobel Kizer cannot be denied mention. Purdue's teams have made an excellent showing ever since Kizer took charge at the Lafayette (Ind.) school at the start of the 1930 season. In three seasons the Boilermakers have won 22 games and tied one, losing only three.

One of the victories was a 13-to-6 decision over Carnegie Tech at the Stadium here in 1932. Purdue, under Kizer, was runner-up for the Big Ten championship in 1930 and 1932 and co-champion in 1931. In the three campaigns, the Old Gold and Black scored 506 points against opponents' 122 and made at least one touchdown in every one of 26 games played, as it had done in 14 straight contests prior to Kizer's coming, a total of 40 in a row up to date.

WHILE JOINING IN praise of Johnny Gilbert, Syrian jockey, for surpassing the 207 wins which Lee Hardy rolled up in 1927, a Cleveland observer, James Doyle, who saw Hardy riding in comparative obscurity at the tracks of that city last summer, is wondering if five years will bring a similar change in Gilbert's career.

Pete Barry

In other words, will Gilbert still be booting his way into the headlines five years hence, or will he be in the background as Hardy was in 1932, with only an occasional winner? It is suggested that a jockey can do no better than make hay while he's hot and let the future look out for itself.

STARTING ANOTHER SEASON of professional basketball with the Rosenblum Celtics, Pete Barry stands out as one of the marvels of the sports world. For more than 20 years he has been a star in the fastest of basketball company, playing five or six nights a week for almost six months of the year, and yet continues to rank as one of the greatest players of the nation. Beyond question he is the greatest dribbler in the professional division of the floor game. He is a superb money player and his team's most valuable man on the court at crucial moments. Barry helped to organize the original Celtics 15 years ago, and estimates that he took part in approximately 1,800 games with them. He played every position, but found he was best at guard, his present post.

ELMER LAYDEN, SUTHERLAND ON BOARD

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Having side-tracked any move to gain voting instead of advisory membership on the National Football Rules Committee, gridiron coaches at their annual National convention have decided instead to set up their own rules committee for 1933, with Lou Little, of Columbia, as chairman, as a means of effecting closer working relations with the game's law-makers.

Far from furnishing any conflict in rules-making activity or setting up a rival organization, the coaches created their own committee for the sole purpose of crystallizing their own views and sentiments, then passing on to the National Rules Committee their suggestions or recommendations.

ADVISERS TO CONTINUE

The liaison between the coaches and the National Committee will continue to be a group of three or four "advisers" from the coaches' ranks who will sit with the football lawmakers but have no voting privileges.

The action of the Football Coaches' Association not only was accepted as a big step forward in rules co-operation, but as avoiding any controversy over admitting the representatives of this group to voting membership in the National Rules Committee, Little said:

"The coaches, while legitimately seeking to exert more influence as an organization in the formulating of the rules, do not consider any drastic or radical action necessary. We are pretty well satisfied with the rules as they are now and propose no major alterations for 1933. This new committee will give us a clearing house, however, for suggestions and things we desire to accomplish. Our advisory representatives and the rules committee will do the rest."

The coaches' rules committee will consist of 20 members in addition to Little. Fifteen of these have been selected by Dr. Marvin Stevens, of Yale, and Dan McGugin, of Vanderbilt, outgoing and incoming president of the Coaches' Association.

LOCALS SELECTED

The members selected from the colleges follow: Gil Dobie, Cornell; Tuss McLaughry, Brown; Fritz Crisler, Princeton; Dr. John B. Sutherland, Pitt; Harry Stuhldreher, Villanova; Elmer Layden, Duquesne; Dick Hanley, Northwestern; Bernie Bierman, Minnesota; Hunk Anderson, Notre Dame; Harry Kipke, Michigan; Harry Mehre, Georgia; Bill Alexander, Georgia Tech; Capt. L. M. (Biff) Jones, Louisiana State; Howard Jones, Southern California, and Paul Schissler, Oregon State.

The coaches having completed their business, football attention was focused on the probable selection of Walter R. Okeson, of Lehigh, as chairman of the National Football Rules Committee, instead of William S. Langford, of New York, present secretary and acting chairman since the death of Edward K. Hall, of Dartmouth.

Nominations for the position will be made today. Okeson at present is commissioner of the Eastern Intercollegiate Association for the Selection of Football Officials.

Stagg Spurns $8,000 Job for Active Work

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(INS.)—Speaking before the annual banquet of the American Football Coaches' Association last night, A. Alonzo Stagg, venerated coach who was ousted by the age limit at Chicago, declared that any job at any pay was preferable to charity. He said:

"I don't want a handout, as they say. I'd rather coach a team of high school boys than accept $8,000 a year as a pensioner."

In closing, Stagg urged the coaches' association to take steps to prevent the ousting of their members from jobs "without reason."

Sport Shorts

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 28.—(AP.)—A man who said he was Koveas Zsigmong, 39, former leading Hungarian lightweight boxer, surrenedered to police here last night and asked to be sent home. Zsigmong said he deserted the freighter Csardins in Galveston last week. Police held him for immigration authorities.

DETROIT, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—James M. Brown, president of the National Boxing Association, said today he was considering revocation of the license of Jack Singer, of Buffalo, manager of Tommy Paul and George Nichols. Brown said an investigation showed that Singer had canceled 11 bouts for Nichols in various cities without adequate reason, and "his handling of Paul in the recent bout with Johnny Mitchell in Toledo was such as to merit suspension. He did not show up until 6 o'clock the day of the fight. He and Paul made the trip from Buffalo by automobile—an all-day ride that left the fighter in no shape to give his best efforts."

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(INS.)—Madison Square Garden has virtually closed a 15-round bout between Frank Battaglia, Winnipeg, and Ben Jeby, New York, for January 13 for the world middleweight championship, vacated by Mickey Walker. Battaglia turned in one of the year's flat upsets by knocking out Jeby in one round.

Hernon to Head Baseball Scribes

John L. Hernon, for the past several years secretary and treasurer of the Pittsburgh chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, has been elected chairman of the chapter for 1933, a position he will combine with his duties as secretary and treasurer.

Hernon was elected at the annual meeting of the chapter at the Pittsburgher last night. The scribes tucked their legs under the festive board following the business meeting, which was presided over by Fred S. Wertenbach, chairman for 1932.

A committee consisting of Ed Balinger, Chester L. Smith and James J. Long was appointed to select a fitting memorial to be placed in the press box at Forbes Field, for John Gruber, charter member of the local chapter, who died last week.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: WITHOUT A MALE PARENT—The queen bee, which hatches from a fertilized egg, is able to control the fertilization of the eggs she lays in turn. The fertilized egg eventually develops either into a queen or into a worker. The eggs destined to develop into the male bee or drone are left unfertilized, so that the drone, whose nearest male relative is the father of its mother, never has a father of his own.

GENEVA EYES RUBENSTEIN

If Geneva College decides to install the graduate system of coaching, and also to hire a coach for all-round work, Moe Rubenstein, present coach at Ambridge High School and former Covenanter basketball star and for one season a member and letter-winner on the football squad, appears likely to get the job.

Since Howard Harpster left Geneva to take the job at Carnegie Tech, the Covenanters have been besieged with applications for the football job. Ken Loeffler, former Penn State star, is the basketball coach and has applied for the grid position. A decision is expected by January 10.

Pee Wee Jarrell

It's Pee Wee Jarreli speaking . . . Pee Wee Jarrell, of Fort Wayne, Ind., who is back in town to fight a return bout with Davy Grove, of the North Side, at the Arena, tomorrow night . . . Pee Wee Jarrell, who, at 27, has 10 years of fighting behind him, and 376 bouts, no more, no less . . . Sometimes he fights as often as three times a week, for long dough or short . . . He doesn't mind, just so he keeps busy and out of mischief . . . And he's always welcome to come back to any town in which he has appeared . . . He boxed Grove at the Garden in his first start here and was floored twice and saved once by the bell, but won the decision and registered a tremendous hit with the fans, to whom his incessant kidding of his opponent and bantering with the customers was something entirely new . . . He came back and boxed the ears off Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, of Memphis, for eight rounds and was knocked out with a single punch, but again he clicked so well that he was brought back against Freddie Edwards, and he won that battle handily . . . Grove has been aching for a return fight with him and Jarrell's back to oblige . . . He'll fight anybody, anywhere, up to middleweights, and guarantee the fans satisfaction, win, lose or draw.

Aside from one cauliflower ear, Jarrell is hardly marked for all of his battles, and he's a rather pleasant looking chap with an engaging smile . . . Talk to him outside the ring and he quickly dispels the notion some of the fans get of him inside the ropes—that he is "screwey" or punch-drunk . . . He's quick-witted and keen of mind . . . He boxed last Monday night in Peru, Ind., shows here tomorrow night and returns to Indiana to box for the state welterweight title next week . . . He's a great card throughout the towns and cities of Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky and has worn himself a beaten path making a circuit of the territory.

Jarrell has boxed Sammy Mandell, Jackie Fields and Jimmy Goodrich, one a champion and the other two former champions; Spug Myers, the Perlick Twins, Danny Delmont, Eddie Ran, Joey Harrison, Harry Dublinsky, Baby Joe Gans, Jackie Brady and others . . . He has been stopped seven times in his almost 400 bouts, once technically, by Ran in a bout in New York's Madison Square Garden . . . The men who stopped him were Fields, Wolfe, Baby Joe Gans, Delmont and a Kid Lyler, back in his preliminary days . . . He struck his head in falling out of the ring in the Delmont bout and

YALE APPOINTS ROOT COACH

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Yale once again has called upon one of its sons to serve in the capacity of head football coach.

Reginald Root

In naming the 29-year-old Root to the post which Stevens resigned 10 days ago, the Yale Athletic Association adhered to its traditional policy of having an Eli alumnus as head of its gridiron squad.

Root, substitute tackle on the elevens of 1924 and 1925 and head freshman coach last season, was one of seven men named on the varsity and junior varsity staffs for 1933.

Adam Walsh, captain of the famous "Four Horsemen" eleven of Notre Dame in 1924, was reappointed line coach, a post he has held for years. Charles A. Comerford, end coach, a post he has held since the war, will continue in the same capacity, while Paul A. (Bucky) O'Connor, another former Notre Dame player, is promoted from junior varsity backfield coach to the same position on the varsity staff.

A native of Leroy, N. Y., Root is credited with introducing the American style of football in Mexico. He was head coach of the National University of Mexico in Mexico City in 1929 and 1930. Previously he was freshman line coach at Yale and head coach at Roxbury and Taft schools.

FRIEL QUITS BROWNS

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 29.—(INS.)—The job of business manager of the St. Louis Browns baseball club was open today following the resignation of William E. Friel. The termination of Friel's connection with the American League club was announced by President Phil Ball. Friel admitted giving up his post, but declined to advance any specific reason for the move.

STAR TACKLE'S INJURED LEG ON MEND

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 29.—After a comparatively quiet six or seven days, Pitt has broke the ice with the first "bear" story of the Rose Bowl ballyhoo. Follow-up reports indicated that there was nothing seriously wrong in the Pitt camp.

Paul Cuba, crack left tackle, who got his right leg in the way of teammates' cleats Tuesday, was reported as being greatly improved today, and Dr. Ralph Shanor expects him to be in playing shape by Monday.

STAR ON MEND

Cuba has ploughed along without any injuries all season, and his loss would have been a serious blow to Pitt's chances, but it is all expected to turn out okay.

John Meredith will run at the left tackle job while Cuba is getting back into shape, and if necessary can play Monday, he being picked to start at this position when the season began.

Pitt is going to move on Pasadena Saturday night, being scheduled to arrive at the Huntington Hotel shortly before 8 o'clock Sunday morning. This is the definite word coming from Coach Jock Sutherland as he makes his final plans for Pitt's most important football game.

The news will disappoint Pasadena and Los Angeles football fans, and Rose Bowl officials, who had hoped that the Panthers would be in town at least one day earlier.

MAY START MATESIC

What the reasons are for Sutherland's last-minute shifts to Heinie Weisenbaugh and Dick Matesic, both possible starters in place of Izzy Weinstock and Mike Sebastian in the Pitt backfield, is not known, but such moves are very liable to be made by the good Doctor.

Matesic may be used to start the game, keeping the excitable Sebastian on the bench until his early nervousness is worn off.

JONES DRIVES TEAM

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Coach Howard Jones, quite a football psychologist in his own reticent way, has assaulted the mental barrier confronting the Southern California team as preparation moved on for the January 2 game with Pitt in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena.

Posting of 10 to 7 odds, or 12 points in favor of the Trojans running their series of victories to 20, apparently was an incentive behind the move against over-confidence. Said Jones:

"If any man thinks the game with Pitt is going to be a setup, he'll get the idea worked out of him before Monday."

And just to prove he meant what he said, Troy's head man yesterday put the team through a workout that reminded it of early September. In fact, Coach Jones was very hard to please.

He didn't like the way his quarterbacks were calling signals and spent a long session calling the plays himself in dummy scrimmage. Homer Griffith and Irvine Warburton, the two signal shouters, realizing the coach had made an example of them, put more fire into their work for the rest of the session.

ODDS FAVOR TROJANS

With the betting odds favoring Southern California, Pittsburgh will come here with a decided psychological edge. The Panthers are determined to erase that 47-to-14 beating of three years ago.

In many cases, the Rose Tournament game has been something of an anti-climax to the regular season for both teams, but in the impending contest the setup is different so far as Pitt is concerned and Jones realizes this.

The physical condition of the Southern California team remained good. Tony Beard, a third string fullback, sustained a slight leg injury, but is expected to be ready for the game.

WARNEKE STANDOUT AMONG NATIONAL LOOP HURLERS

TWO BUCCANEER PITCHERS NEAR CUB LEADER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Lonnie Warneke, the big country kid with the pennant-winning Chicago Cubs, stole the show from the other National League pitchers in the 1932 season. Official pitching averages given out for publication today disclose that the tall right-hander led the league in the point of earned-run efficiency as well as from the standpoint of victories and defeats.

Lonnie Warneke

Warneke allowed only 2.37 earned runs per nine-inning game, while his 22 victories as against six defeats also put him at the top.

Steve Swetonic and Larry French also were standout sharpshooters within Mr. Heydler's closed corporation. North Side Steve was the fourth best pitcher among the aces of the league, while the laughing lefthander was just two notches below his "roomie."

SWETONIC NEAR TOP

Swetonic allowed only 2.82 earned runs per game. French's efficiency figure being 3.02. Steve was the second best in the league as computed from percentage of triumphs, his string showing 11 victories and four defeats. The Native Son appeared to be on the way to a marvelous season when a lame pitching arm took out of action.

Swetonic, by the way, tied with Jerome Dean, of the Cards, for shutout honors, each had four scoreless games. French took part in the most games—47.

LUCAS HARD WORKER

Red Lucas, of the lowly Reds, should be decorated for his performance. This uncomplaining righthander pitched more complete games than any pitcher in the circuit—28. And it was the second time the sorrel-top had turned in this trick.

P. T. A. CONFAB DATE SET

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The yearly winter conclave of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association is been set for the P. A. A. the ming of Monday, January 9. ing of the date for the local nclave followed closely the announcement yesterday that the iddle States L. T. A. will stage sectional get-together in Philaiphia on Saturday, January 21. P. T. A. officials state that sevral matters of moment await setment at the Winged Head powow, not the least of these being nsideration of the initial draft a new association constitution d set of playing rules to govern terclub loop competition here.

EW RULES NEEDED

Lack of definite team regulaons engendered no little compliation and heat in the latter ages of the Section I race last ummer and but for the fact that . A. A. resolved all arguments by rimming Edgewood in final comat decisively enough to slip the ed and Gray a clear title to the avis Keg for '32 there would unoubtedly have arisen a situation o tax the finesse and diplomacy of all concerned.

As a consequence of the August mbarrassment, a committee has been at work upon rules revision for some time past, the fruits of the deliberations of this outfit to be presented a week from Monday.

Another angle certain to merit attention at the cold weather meeting is that of Pittsburgh representation at the Middle States session. P. T. A. President J. Phillips Davis journeyed to Philadelphia as home delegate a year ago and was successful in obtaining notable territorial extension for the Pittsburgh district association. At present, it is no secret that anti-eastern sentiment exists in various P. T. A. quarters.

LOCALS IGNORED

The ignoring of Pittsburgh talent in the recently released Middle States ratings rankles aplenty here even unto the point of advocacy of the formation of a new sectional association to take in Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and parts of Ohio and perhaps New York—a set-up more to the geographical liking of West Penn authorities.

Then, too, there will be report of the P. T. A. ranking committee report on county parks tennis and other items of interest, all of which should assure a large turnout of racquet fans from the score or so of member clubs in the district.

GENE TUNNEY TELLS STORY OF LIFE

By GENE TUNNEY

Retired Heavyweight Champion

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE.

Another clinch and Kiser repeated his butting, which I responded to with my thumb in the direction of his eye. Again he yelled:

Gene Tunney

"I tell you he is gouging me!"

I said to Kiser:

"Now will you be a good boy?"

From then on the New York State Boxing Commission's rules were strictly adhered to. I got the decision at the end of 12 rounds. In an unimportant fight of this kind, I found that when a situation developed where an opponent was continually fouling and would not listen to the admonitions of the referee there was but on thing to do—handle the situation yourself by the most effective means. A threatened thumb in the eye always is effective against this type of opponent. The toughest and roughest fighter fears losing his sight. Later on, in important matches, having learned that referees are sometimes prejudiced, when an opponent deliberately and continually fouled me, I was cautious about applying pretended illegal means to stop him. I felt that it was not worth the risk of losing the fight through disqualification.

BOUT WITH HANLON

If a referee, who always is the sole arbiter of what is against the rules, is prejudiced or crooked, he can disqualify a contestant for one infraction, even if this contestant has been the victim of 50 previous infractions during the contest. In my important matches, I always avoided giving any referee the slightest reason to disqualify me for any fracture of the rules. That was a principle of mine which I adhered to strictly, first because I never wanted victory won in that way, and, secondly, a foul might be too costly.

Shortly after the Kiser match, the matchmaker of the Clermont Avenue Rink, in Brooklyn, brought me over to box Jack Hanlon, who had not boxed in some time. The last time I had seen Hanlon was at Dave Driscoll's Armory Club in Jersey City, a year and a half earlier, where Jack and I had been matched to meet in the semi-final of a charity show.

The boxers in the star bout did not show up that night, so the whole show was called off. Hanlon became very indignant at losing the opportunity to give me a hiding. He just knew he could administer one to that "bum Tunney." Jack was a head runner for a brokerage firm in Wall street. One of the boys from Greenwich Village, Henry Fitzpatrick, was compelled on a dozen occasions to listen to Jack's dissertations on how quickly he would destroy the pugilistic aspirations of Tunney if he could get him into the ring. Fitzpatrick, having a particular dislike for Hanlon because of these experiences, came over to Brooklyn to see the fight. On the way over he recalled to my mind the countless things that Hanlon had said about me.

SAD MIS-MATCH

When the fight started, I was naturally in a more or less angry frame of mind. I skipped out of my corner thinking of childish revenge. Hanlon, upon getting within speaking distance, whispered:

"Take it easy!"

I looked at him, wondering if this was another Battling Levinsky stall. At any rate, I took no chances and did not pull any punches. The match lasted one-half minute. I do not believe I ever hit anybody harder. Poor Jack was not seen around Wall street for several days. He sustained a broken jaw.

This experience did not prove beneficial. For several months a mental picture of Hanlon lying on the floor, blood oozing from his mouth and his lower jaw broken, haunted me.

Somebody in authority, either the boxing commissioner or the promoter, never should have allowed this match to take place. Hanlon, though he had been a fairly good heavyweight in his day, had not been in the ring for over a year. He was not a fit opponent for an active fighter. Just because Hanlon wanted to fight me was no reason why he should have been given the match. This is the kind of thing that occasionally arises in boxing, and next to thugs managing fighters gives boxing the biggest black eye. Until professional boxing stops exhibitions of this kind, it cannot be considered a true sport.

KNOCKS OUT WEINERT

There is nothing more pathetic or unsporting than to see the remnants of what once was an effective, capable fighter being battered around the ring by a strong, hard-hitting youngster whose manager desires to put good names on his record of knockouts. Unless men are somewhat evenly matched as to skill, weight and condition a spectacle in which they are pitted against each other cannot be truly termed sport.

Today there are exhibitionists of this kind touring the country from one end to the other engaging in things misnamed "contests of sport."

On Thanksgiving Eve, in a return match with Charley Weinert at Madison Square Garden, I won by a knockout in four rounds. It was just four months earlier that Weinert and I had engaged in the 12-round match in his home town, Newark, N. J. Against my specific instructions, my manager agreed to let Henry Lewis, Weinert's pal, into the ring as referee in that Newark match. I had to battle two men that night.

However, I had the satisfaction of throwing Weinert out of the ring twice, the second time he landed head first on the platform outside of the ring.

Henry Lewis, in a conversation subsequent to the second match with Weinert, said:

"Gene, I hope you won't hold that first Weinert fight against me. You know Charley is my pal, and, dammit, I would do anything to help him."

I liked Lewis' frankness.

WIGGINS GOOD SPORT

Weinert, in my opinion, was the cleverest heavyweight developed in the last 25 years. He had amazing speed and skill—courage, too. His left jab was vicious. It broke my nose. Charley, unfortunately, valued more the early-morning plaudits of the "cabaretees" than the cheers of ringsiders. He got what he wanted—for a while. He learned later that those plaudits followed and depended upon the cheers.

In Boston, shortly before the Weinert match, I engaged in a 10-round bout with Chuck Wiggins. A very amusing thing happened in this fight. At this period I was developing a new punch. After feinting, I would bend down, slip in, and bring a left uppercut to the solar plexus or liver. My judgment of distance was not yet good. On two occasions I tried this on Wiggins, and was cautioned by the referee both times for hitting low. In the seventh round, I slipped in, and again accidentally hit Chuck low. The referee immediately jumped between us; he was ready to give the fight to Wiggins on a foul, but Chuck pushed him aside and said:

"Gene, no kidding, that was low! Keep 'em up!"

BREAKS WITH BAGLEY

He then resumed fighting, though he had been getting a fairly good whaling. Chuck was not of the school that would take a fight on a foul unless he was really incapacitated.

Following the second Weinert match, I became rather restless over my relations with Doc Bagley. Doc had that three-year agreement drawn on the commission form of contract. Some kind of arrangement had to be made about canceling it. I was searching for what I thought would be the ideal arrangement between boxer and manager. I felt a note of discord in Bagley's and my ideals and views. I am afraid I was a bit intolerant and over-zealous. However, that was my attitude. I purchased my contract from Bagley for $5,000. I put a note in a bank to get the money. This was my first note. I wish it had remained the last. I have papered my den with defaulted notes of friends with my indorsement.

After Doc and I shook hands and parted company, I went to see Joseph Falvey, a prominent athlete of the Avonia A. C. Joe had been around a good deal and was acquainted with many managers. After I told him I was looking for a manager he suggested Billy Gibson, and, at my acquiescence, brought Billy down to his office, where I met and talked with him for the first time. During this conference, Billy made a great impression on me. He seemed to sense my ambition. I agreed to box under his management from then on. Contracts for a period of three years were drawn and signed.

ALLIANCE WITH GIBSON

Billy was very smart and resourceful about the business of managing boxers, though he never thoroughly understood boxing technique. He stood out as the most prominent man in professional sports in America at that time. He was a most lovable character, and on making a friend very rarely lost that friendship.

From the moment I first met Billy until I retired from the ring, except for a short interval, we remained friends and had mutual regard for each other.

That much talked-of Tunney-Renault "no-contest," a tribute to Harry Greb, and arrangements for a return match with him will be highlights in tomorrow's installment.

SYNOPSIS

The author already has related the stirring and significant incidents of his fistic career that date back to boyhood pier scraps, fight club thrills in his teens, the winning of the A. E. F. light-heavy crown when with the U. S. Marines in France, and in 1922 that title for America through a 15-round decision over Battling Levinsky. Four months later, Gene lost that crown to Harry Greb, of Pittsburgh, barely surviving a 15-round inferno. After a few weeks' rest, Tunney tunes up for a return bout by boxing Charley Weinert, Tommy Loughran, Chuck Wiggins and Fay Kiser. The latter and Tunney are in action as the author resumes the story . . . Gene's just complaint to the referee that Kiser had been "butting"; Tunney, in turn, is pretending to stick his thumb in Fay's eye.

CLAN DOUGLAS FACES TEST IN SWITCHMEN

By TOM BIRKS

Whether Clan Douglas will meet Lawrenceville for the championship of the Central District Soccer League depends upon the outcome of the Clansmen's game with Union Switch at the Westinghouse High School Stadium Saturday afternoon. The game stacks up as one of the best of the Central League season.

Over a period of many years, Union Switch and Douglas have been bitter rivals. Last season, after a terrific battle, the Switch won the Central League pennant from the Douglas team. This time fans feel that the Clansmen are going to even up matters with the Swissvalers.

Another item that should be drawn to the fans' attention is that Douglas has made less changes in its roster than any club in the league. Practically all the Douglas players are utility men. Duff plays goal or in the forward line, Craig performs equally well at fullback or halfback. Stirling, one of the best halfbacks in the district, can fill the role of goalkeeper and still be just as competent, while Foster, one of the old reliable Douglas standbys, fits in any place in the lineup. This utility player business probably is the secret of the Clansmen's success.

Lawrenceville is idle this weekend. The Strip players probably will travel to Homewood to watch the Switch-Douglas tangle. German Sport will invade Ambridge to meet the Bridge Workers, while McKeesport goes to Mt. Lebanon to clash with the Firemen.

Representatives from the Gallatin Juniors, Beadling, Sygan Juniors, Hill Station, Pleasant Hills, DeMarco Roofings, Shannon Braves, West Carnegie, Grove A. C., Local Union, Dunlevy Juniors, Fitz Henry, Monongahela Speedway, Donora Spanish, Fayette City and Belle Vernon have been invited to attend a meeting January 4 at Bob Broggs', Gallatin, for the purpose of organizing a soccer league.

Princeton to Meet Dartmouth in '33

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Dartmouth and Princeton, unless present plans fall through, will resume an old football rivalry next November 11.

Resumption of the relations, first begun in 1897, was scheduled for 1934, but plans now call for a game next fall.

Princeton last played Dartmouth in 1916. A game with Dartmouth would give the Tigers five major games next fall, the others already scheduled being with Columbia, Brown, Navy and Yale.

BRUBAKER PILOT

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Ray Brubaker, veteran utility man of the Oakland Club of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, today was chosen as manager of the club, succeeding Carl Zamloch. Brubaker came here from St. Joseph, of the Western League in 1926.

By HARRY KECK,

Realizing that there was something wrong with the way his card for the New Years Night boxing show shaped up in its original form, Matchmaker Jules Beck has taken it apart and reassembled the pieces.

As a result, the Battling Gizzy-Louis Di Santis 10-rounder is out and the Jimmy Belmont-Alabama Kid return bout, which at first was to be the eight-round semi-final and then was shoved down under the Gizzy match for a second preliminary, is pulled back up, made into a 10-rounder and will serve as half of a double windup, with Manuel Quintero, the Spanish welterweight from Florida, in the top spot with Billy Holt, of Homewood.

INTEREST IN ALABAMA KID

Actually, there is a great deal more local interest in the Belmont-Alabama Kid pairing than there is in the Quintero affair, for Belmont was stopped in six rounds by the Dover (O.) Negro last week, and the fans want to find out for themselves whether it was a fluke or the Alabama Kid can do it again. Quintero, a topnotch southpaw, who has beaten some of the best men in the game, figures to be a sure winner over Holt, and thus the match lacks the element of a contest.

Quintero's manager refused to permit his man to box Frankie Goosby, on the plea that Goosby is a middleweight, yet Quintero has beaten both Tommy Freeman and Gorilla Jones, middleweights, who boxed at the Garden on Christmas afternoon. When Quintero was introduced at the latter show, the fans clamored to have him matched with Goosby, and the customers should be their own best matchmakers. With Quintero refusing to meet the only logical local drawing card against him, the club might have gone whole hog in revising its program and put him into the semi-final with any inferior opponent and shoved the Belmont-Alabama Kid thing on top.

JARRELL ON SCENE

Pee Wee Jarrell, of Fort Wayne, Ind., arrived in town yesterday to finish his training for his return bout with Davy Grove at the Arena, on the North Side, tomorrow night. He will work out in the Motor Square Garden gymnasium this afternoon. Pee Wee was introduced during the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE last night.

SEEDED TENNIS STARS LOSE

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Alfred L. Jarvis, of Tenafly, N. J., top seeded favorite in the boys' division of the annual national junior and boys' indoor tennis championship being held here this week, opened the third day's play today with a straight love set victory over Joseph Feldman, of New York.

Lyman W. Crossman, Jr., the 14-year-old White Plains, N. J., player who was No. 2 favorite, met his superior today in William V. Winslow, of Rochester, N. Y., and was eliminated in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3.

Charles T. Mattman, of the West Side Tennis Club, of Forest Hills, L. I., fourth seeded favorite, also was the victim of an upset when he was beaten in straight sets by Nathan Ritzenberg, of Brooklyn 6-0, 6-3.

MISS HARDING WINS

BROOKLINE, Mass., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Louise Harding, of Brookline, former state champion for girls under 15, entered the semi-final round of the National girls' junior tennis championships by defeating Lucy Fowle of Winchester, seeded second, 4-6, 7-6, 6-4.

Miss Harding was not seeded, although she was a finalist in the event last winter. In the other quarter-final match yesterday, Helen Jones, of Swampscott, won from Marion Woods, of Brookline, 6-1, 0-6, 8-6.

CUE CHAMPION LOSES LEAD

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—After falling behind temporarily, Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, has regained the lead over Ralph Greenleaf, of New York, recent winner of the world pocket billiard championship, in their special 1,750 point match.

Rudolph scored 151 points to Greenleaf's 56 in the sixth block last night to gain a margin of 625 to 556. The block went 12 innings with high runs of 47 for Rudolph and 27 for Greenleaf.

Nick Oliva, Y. M. C. A. champion of Chicago, and Arthur Judice, Eastern champion, of New York, took the lead in the National junior pocket billiard championship.

Judice, after setting a new world high-run record for junior play with a cluster of 43 as he downed Henry Auerbach, of New York, 75-12 in his afternoon match yesterday, went on to defeat John Wright, Brooklyn city champion, 75 to 22, in 17 innings of the night game.

Oliva won his second game from Auerbach, 75 to 23, in 23 innings, after defeating Joseph Balsis, of Philadelphia, 75-69. Oliva had a high run of 15 last night, while Auerbach's best was 5.

THE GREAT OUTDOORS

By GIB MARSH

A review of strange encounters and experiences by hunters during the small and big game hunting seasons always invites interest among sportsmen. Perhaps the most rare or novel encounter of that character this year was met by District Attorney Andrew Park, J. Guy Royal and Frank Snaman, all of this city, while on a waterfowl hunt in Canada.

While sitting in the blind they saw one of their wooden decoys dragged under the surface of the water. Before they had time to conjecture another decoy went under the surface. Another followed. Then two more decoys disappeared. Further thinking was discarded and Park and Royal rowed to where the decoys were moored to investigate.

MUSKIE ENTANGLED

After some difficulty in dragging in the decoy anchor lines, they began to meet with hard resistance. As they pulled in the anchor lines, they got a flash of a large muskellunge. With limited room in the boat, plus their guns, shells and other equipment, it was difficult to combate the fighting muskie. The fish swirled and tugged. The entangled decoy anchor lines made the handling of the fish difficult.

Finally they hauled the anchor irons, fish and mooring lines aboard. The "muskie," during the summer evidently had struck a large spinner bait, trolled by an angler, and had been hooked hard and fast, but had succeeded in breaking the angler's line, escaping with the spinner firmly hooked in its lower jaw.

PRISONER LIBERATED

Perhaps for weeks or a couple of months the muskie had been swimming about with the large lure dangling from its jaw. In searching about the lake for food the lure had become entangled in the anchor lines holding the Park, Royal and Snaman waterfowl decoys.

After a lot of work, Park and Royal removed the large spinner from the mouth of the muskie and liberated it. It measured about 48 inches.

It is generally conceded all fish are "dumb," but the writer will wager it will be many fishing seasons before that particular muskie will strike at another spinner.

LOCAL COLLEGE QUINTS SET FOR FRAYS

By JESS CARVER

Wanted:—An order of goofer dust, extra strong and a voodooist who knows how to spread it. See Doc Carlson, University of Pittsburgh, sometime between now and Sat'day evening.

Goofer dust is great stuff. It's hard to make; you have to know where to get the ingredients and you have to know how to mix 'em. Most goofer dust makers start with a basis of salt and work up. It's the stuff that won the world series in four straight games for the New York Yankees, the maker and distributor in that case being Bill Robinson, the hoofer. Bill sprinkled it all around the Cubs' dugout, over their bats and gloves and shoes. They never had a chance. It was in the bag for the Yanks after Bill's goofer dust took effect.

NEED DUST BAD

Doc Carlson wants some of the same for use against Purdue in the Stadium Pavilion Saturday evening. Chick Davies, at Duquesne, could use a little Friday, too, but he figures he can get along with a weaker brand as the Dukes are playing only Adrian College, of Michigan, a team which figures to lay down and roll over upon being tagged with even the teeniest, weeniest bit of even synthetic goofer dust. But with the Doc it is different, a whale of a lot different. The Doc and his Panthers are up against just about the best college team in the country.

Out in Indiana, where all basketball teams are tough, little Wabash College seldom figures to be a setup, yet t'other night, Coach Ward Lambert started his second team and ran up a 19 to 7 advantage at half time. Then he inserted his varsity for a time in the second half, Kellar, Stewart, Parmenter and Dutch Fhering, and they ran the score all out of proportion before Lambert decided to get 'em back on the bench.

If you'll recall, the last time Purdue (Pooh, Pooh Purdue) was here, the Pitts hopped away to a commanding lead in the first half, but in the second half, the Big Tenners began to click and it was only by the skin of their toofies that the Panthers won. The story might have been different if Kellar had been in there all the way, but the Boilermaker star was on the hospital list that night with a bum knee and saw only a minute or so of action. But what a minute!

MUST STOP KELLAR

He was sent in during the expiring minutes of the game and right away stamped himself as the best man on the floor, bum knee or no bum knee. He got the ball and dribbled through the entire Pitt team for a score and missed another one that would have tied the old ball game.

This year he hasn't a trick knee. Maybe Doc had better send for the Marines.

Coach Davies and his city champions of 1932, the Dukes, are just about ready for their inaugural with Adrian tomorrow evening. Coach Chick, who becomes more gloomy with each passing day, what with one thing and another to beset him, including a raft of material and the prospect of having to battle with Buck (Hard Hat) Snyder and Franklin (Red) Byers as officials in the opener, broke down following yesterday's drill and announced a tentative starting lineup, which finds Jim MacDougal and Feldman at the forwards, Capt. Bunk McGeever at center and Marty Reiter and capable Dudey Moore at the guards. This lineup looks suspiciously like the one that won the city crown a year back.

Coach Dale Sprankle, of Adrian, former mentor at Burgettstown High School, where he developed the famous Cowboy Hill, New York U. grid luminary, has a veteran aggregation under his direction and figures to make a better showing than was the case a year ago.

Miss Kight Tries For Swim Record

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—An imposing array of Olympic and national champion swimmers and divers gathered here today for assaults on existing records in a three-day aquatic meet at the Miami-Biltmore Country Club.

Katherine Rawls, 15-year-old speed swimmer and diver of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Lenore Kight, of Homestead, Pa., were scheduled as first day features. Miss Rawls, holder of four national championships, planned to attempt lowering the short course 440-yard breast stroke mark now held by Agnes Geraghty. Miss Kight centered first day attention on the 400-yard free style record of Helene Madison.

RALLY CARRIES STOCK PRICES UPWARD

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—The stock market again made a brave effort to rally today.

Although yesterday's upturn had been largely erased by selling in the last hour, it was evident that professional traders still favored the constructive side of the market.

This was the last day in which selling could be done in the normal way to establish losses for tax purposes, and brokers were inclined to look for a better market with the weight of this selling lifted.

Tomorrow's normal transactions will not be cleared until Monday, so any tax selling tomorrow will have to be for cash, or immediate settlement.

Federal fiscal matters again attracted considerable attention in the financial district, where a balanced budget is widely regarded as essential to restoration of complete financial confidence, particularly in view of the large portion of banking assets now in United States government securities. Efforts of Democratic leaders in Congress to pave the way for governmental economies after March 4 were viewed hopefully. While the general manufacturers' sales tax has had strong supporters in Wall street, this support has in a considerable measure been based on the belief that adequate economies could not be accomplished.

The weekly statement of the Bank of England disclosed that the proportion of its reserves to liabilities had fallen to the extremely low level of 16.8 per cent. A return of funds to the banks after the turn of the year should considerably improve the ratio, but the bank's position indicated that stabilization of sterling was a considerable distance away. Stabilization of this principal currency in world trade is regarded as urgent in many quarters in Wall street.

MATCH TRUSTEE ASKS BIG SUM

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(INS.)—Damages aggregating $25,000,000 and an accounting of $100,000,000 allegedly paid out wrongfully by the International Match Company, subsidiary of the Kreuger & Toll Company, are asked in two suits on file today against eight American directors of the bankrupt match company. The actions were filed by the Irving Trust Company, trustee for International Match.

The trustee firm, in its damage suit, claimed that $249,981,000 damages are due because the directors of International Match wrongfully disbursed unearned dividends at various times since September, 1928, while knowing the company was financially unable to pay dividends.

The directors named in the suit are: F. W. Allen, Donald Durant, H. O. Havemeyer, Francis L. Higginson, A. H. Larkin, John McHugh, S. F. Pryor and Percy Rockefeller.

The damages sought by the Irving Trust, it was said, are the largest ever asked in a bankruptcy case.

POWER OUTPUT DROP SMALL

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Electric power output last week amounted to 1,554,473,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 1,563,384,000 in the preceding week, and 1,564,652,000 in the corresponding period last year, the National Electric Light Association reported today.

The usual percentage comparisons are omitted by the association this week because the figures of 1931 included Christmas Day, whereas this year the holiday came later. A year ago output dropped to 1,564,652,000 kilowatt hours from 1,675,613,000.

Harpell Sentenced In Sun Life Case

MONTREAL, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—James J. Harpell, charged with criminal libel against Thomas B. Macaulay, of the Sun Life Assurance Company, has been sentenced to three months imprisonment.

He was convicted last week after a trial which lasted five days. The charge was based on articles in Harpell's magazine, the Journal of Commerce, and in a book called, "Industry, Commerce and Finance."

Calixte Cormier, chief of defense counsel, said he would appeal.

U. G. I. Elects Three New Board Members

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Edward T. Stotesbury, Harold Stanley and Langdon K. Thorne have resigned as directors of the United Gas Improvement Company.

They were succeeded by Charles D. Dickey, a member of the Drexel banking firm of Philadelphia of which Stotesbury is a member; Floyd L. Carlisle, of Glen Cove, L. I., widely known in New York State public utility circles, and Edward B. Leisenring, of Ardmore, Pa., president of the Westmoreland Coal Company.

Habirshaw Defers January Shutdown

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Some large manufacturers of brass products, it is reported in the trade, are booking a substantially larger volume of orders. The Habirshaw Cable and Wire Corporation, manufacturing subsidiary of the Phelps-Dodge Corporation, is reported to have deferred the annual inventory shutdown because of an unexpected influx of orders. The improvement is attributed to low stocks.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 29.—The market was due ½d higher. Opened unchanged and at 3:20 p. m. was unchanged to ¼d lower.

Letters Show How Opinion Is Changing

—By B. C. FORBES—

THE MASS of mail received by this column now strikes, on the average, a distinctly less pessimistic note than was true a few months ago.

Mr. Forbes

FEWER READERS offer fancy panaceas to cure all our ills; most suggestions now are of a more practical nature.

The inflow of Communistic and other "Red" communications has notably decreased.

There is less disposition to blackguard financial, industrial and other leaders for their inability to lasso prosperity—evidently it is recognized that America is not the only country where the problem has proved insurmountable.

THIS MAY seem strange: Inquiries are beginning to come in from readers who have capital and want to know how to utilize it. Some want to be told which securities to buy; some want suggestions as to which lines of business offer most promising opportunities.

Very few workers write denouncing their employers.

Naturally, grumblings come from unemployed, but not as many as formerly.

More business men express confidence in the nation's ability to work its way out.

Since this column first discussed—and criticized—"technocracy" the subject manifestly has excited widespread curiosity. "What is it all about?" is the most common query. Some who at first were impressed and worried now are disposed to ridicule the whole crazy ebullition.

ON THE whole, it is encouraging to note that there has developed a much broader understanding of the workings of economics, a much deeper appreciation of the universality of present-day economic troubles, a more sympathetic interpretation of the efforts being made by business leaders to mitigate distress, a broader recognition of the fact that all classes have been afflicted by the depression.

SENTENCES FROM one day's letters:

Arthur Fertig:

"We have statistics from retail furniture stores doing $40,000,000 annual business which show conclusively that furniture, beds, etc., have been bought in large quantities throughout the depression. Lower prices have reduced the dollar volume. Installment-selling will expand, but a boom waits upon a rise in commodity price levels and an increase in employment, both unplumbed factors."

WILLIAM T. HELMKE, interested in aeronautics, recommends: Consolidation and coordination of railway and airplane lines, and development of the airplane by railroads for freight purposes and over-night passenger transportation.

B. B. HINE:

"Tell Morgan not to pass the U. S. Steel preferred dividend or the people of this country, very heavily in debt, will have to follow France's example."

P. M. RINGDAL:

"All the farmer asks—and will no longer be denied—is that part of the tariff discrimination imposed on him be taken off his shoulders by making the tariff effective on that part of his product consumed in this country."

ALBERT B. LORD, relator, is blazoning this on all his real estate signs:

"Don't blame the other fellow; It's you and me."

LOUIS S. CLARK, president, Mortgage Bankers' Association of Nebraska:

"You have the wrong angle on the voluntary domestic allotment plan . . . Our world market for wheat and hog products is rapidly drying up. We must, therefore, learn to live within ourselves. Many say, 'you can't take from one and give to another.' That is exactly what the industrial East has been doing for many years."

T. C. HUME:

"Why should we live in a country of plenty and then arbitrarily force humanity into distress and disaster?"

Michigan Court Bans Chain Tax

In the first case brought to test the validity of a law whereby a municipality is empowered to levy discriminatory taxes against chain stores, the Circuit Court of Wayne County, Mich., at Detroit, held against the right of a municipal corporation to collect taxes under such an ordinance.

The city of Hamtramck, Mich., which is part of Greater Detroit, attempted to impose a graduated tax on chain stores.

In a suit brought by the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company as plaintiff, to enjoin the enforcement of the ordinance, the court ruled that the tax was unconstitutional and beyond the power of a city or village.

ECONOMIC BODY SEEKS CURE FOR SLUMP

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 29.—As this third year of challenging depression draws to a close, the nation's foremost money doctors, business clinicians and scientific trade consultants have foregathered here to formulate remedies at the annual convention of the American Economic Association and of 11 other affiliated learned societies.

Mr. Rukeyser

Unlike chambers of commerce and propagandist agencies, the American Economic Association fights for no pet causes or policies, but gives the scholars of the country a forum for presenting all sides of controversial questions. Much of the current talk here is prophetic of discussions which will take place in Congress next year and in succeeding years.

CONFIDENCE LACKING

If there is a consensus of opinion, it is one of skepticism in panaceas, and faith in the curative value of orderly application of the spirit of analysis and scientific method to knotty problems of the period.

Chatting with E. W. Kemmerer, Princeton University, world's foremost monetary pathologist, I asked him whether he thought tinkering with the currency at this time would be constructive. He replied in the negative, saying, however, that we had learned that no country has an ideal monetary standard and that scientific economists should begin to devote their attention to the development of a more ideal standard.

He did not recommend, however, that a change should be made during the depression, fearing the effect of experimentation on confidence. Dr. Kemmerer said that the country was not suffering from scarcity of money, but from lack of confidence which has been expressed in a spectacular decline in the velocity of turnover of bank deposits. In other words, a given amount of money is doing considerably less than the usual amount of work.

HITS TECHNOCRACY

Dr. Kemmerer favors tariff revision, a policy of assuring that retail prices fully reflect declines in the wholesale markets, and acceleration of public works "within limits."

Technocracy—that vastly overadvertised cult—is rather a stepchild here. Dr. D. R. Dewey, economist of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, dismissed the subject thus:

"Technocracy now has a better name—'techno-crazy'.

"We're going to get out of this depression just as we got out of all previous depressions.

"This talk about 'collapse of our civilization' because of the progress of machinery is absurd."

BUSINESS

Predictions Disagree On New Year Outlook

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

PREDICTIONS ON THE prospects for the coming year are not entirely in agreement. Most of the commentators draw hope for the future from the fact that some improvement actually did take place in October and November but the conclusions they draw concerning 1933 prospects vary widely.

As examples, Bradstreet's Weekly says:

"A balance sheet of the business situation at the present time reveals a distinct preponderance of constructive factors. In many respects the situation is more hopeful than it has been for many weeks."

On the other hand, the Guaranty Trust Company of New York declares:

"Business approaches the year-end with some encouraging features in the situation, but with the outlook for the early future more than usually clouded with uncertainty. Readjustment has proceeded swiftly throughout the year, and the prospects are undoubtedly better than they were at the end of 1931. However, it has become increasingly clear that the likelihood of any reasonably prompt recovery from the world-wide depression depends largely on political action at home and abroad."

Importance of Debt Defaults Disputed

BRADSTREET'S declares that the aspect of the business situation as a whole has been obscured by the extraordinary public attention given to certain events of an unpropitious character. These are the action of the stock market, the drop in steel production and the defaults of France and other countries on the foreign debt payments.

According to Bradstreet's, the importance of the debts has been exaggerated. The weekly says:

"Whether these debtors pay or do not pay can have no substantial bearing on the course of American recovery. This was achieved after the war in the face of a European chaos compared with which that continent's present condition is one of immaculate order. Throughout the period 1923-29 in which the allies were paying their dues, the country and the world prospered. During the period of the moratorium, on the other hand, while debt payments were in suspense, the relief did not have any measurable remedial effect upon business at home or abroad.

"On the credit side of the business ledger are an increasing number of vigorous items which not only assure strength in holding a present position but offer some real hope of positive progress."

Bank Sees Debts As Major Factor

THE GUARANTY Trust Company, on the other hand sees the foreign debts as an influence of major importance. Its review says:

"It has become increasingly clear that the likelihood of any reasonably prompt recovery from the world-wide depression depends largely on political action at home and abroad. War debts, trade barriers, monetary restoration, budget balancing and political stability represent problems that have become more vital than ever to the world's economic welfare and that depend for their solution on the action of public officials.

"The default by several nations on their war debt payments to the United States, due on December 15, cannot be regarded otherwise than as a blow to confidence and, consequently, as a setback to trade revival throughout the world. It is to be feared, however, that the default will tend to retard, rather than promote, the final solution of the debt problem. How serious the adverse effects may be will depend on the extent to which the American attitude in the face of this unfortunate development is tempered with a broad-minded appreciation of the debtors' point of view. The principal need of the moment is a settlement of the question that will end the present uncertainty, and the achievement of a satisfactory solution will require as much good will and mutual toleration as can be summoned to the aid of the negotiators."

Bank of France.

MARY FAITH

By BEATRICE BURTON

Kim Goes to Party Alone When Wife Objects to Drinking, Gambling

CHAPTER XVIII.

When Kim came home the table would be set and an appetizing odor of broiling steak or other meat would come drifting out of the kitchen whenever the door swung open.

"I'm afraid you've married a very dull sort of woman, Kim," Mary Faith told him one night when they were walking home from the movies. "I'm more interested in you and in taking care of your house than I am in anybody or anything else under the sun. I'm just a plain garden-variety housewife, I guess."

"You're the loveliest wife that a man ever had," Kim answered her, and he stopped in the darkness of Wilton street to kiss her.

That was on Thursday. On Friday night the Maldons came over to spend the evening.

Mary Faith brought out a card table and the four of them played bridge, but not for money. At 11 o'clock Mary Faith went into the kitchen and came back with cheese sandwiches and coffee on a tray. She was very proud of her hand-embroidered table cover and the dainty, pink-sprigged china dishes.

"We had a good time, didn't we?" she asked Kim as the door closed upon Claire and Jack. "And we didn't have to gamble or drink to enjoy ourselves, either, did we?"

KIM DISPLEASED

He looked at her and his eyes were full of disgust and anger. "What are you talking about?" he said. "You don't imagine they had a good time sitting around here without a thing to drink but coffee, do you?— We didn't even have a new dance record to pep things up. No, they had a rotten time; and if you had any sense about such things you'd know it."

On Sunday night Claire Maldon called Kim up.

Mary Faith heard him answer the telephone when it rang. She heard him say, "Wait a minute, Claire. I'll ask her."

And then he came into the sitting room, where she sat reading the woman's section of the Sunday paper.

"Claire wants us to go over there and play some poker," he said. "She says they have a crowd of people in for supper. . . . Let's go, Mary Faith. Everybody plays cards on Sunday; and we've done nothing but sit around this flat, dying of dry-rot, for a month or more."

Mary Faith looked up at him with troubled eyes.

"Kim, you and I never have played cards on Sunday," she answered. "Why should we start to do it now?—Besides, the Maldons play for money, and I wouldn't gamble even on a week-day. I don't want to go, Kim."

DECIDES TO GO

He stood starting into space for a minute or two. Then he shrugged his shoulders.

"Suit yourself," he said. "But I hope you won't mind if I go. I'd like to get out of this place for a couple of hours. After all, Sunday is the only day in the week that I have to myself . . . and I like to see people once in a while. You never ask anybody here."

"You won't let me ask Jean Bartlett here," Mary Faith reminded him. "And you know we used to have lots of fun with Jean and the men she used to pal around with . . . Kim, I don't like you to get into the habit of drinking and gambling with those Maldons. You never used to do things like that."

Kim started back to the telephone.

"Well, I'm doing them now," he said as he walked away from her. "I suppose I still have some personal liberty even if I am a married man."

She heard him tell Claire that he'd be right over. Then she heard him go down the hall to his bedroom.

She got up presently and followed him.

He was standing at his dresser, plastering his blond hair close to his head with two wet brushes.

"Kim, I don't know what to do about the Maldons," Mary Faith said, her eyes meeting his in the cloudy mirror above the dresser. "They're nice people, but I think they're too swift for us . . . At the same time I think that a wife ought to be a good sport. I'd always made up my mind to like your friends and to go wherever you went—"

"Well, why don't you go then instead of talking about it so much?" Kim cut her short. "Playing cards on Sunday isn't one of the seven deadly sins, whether you know it or not—"

"Oh, I wasn't going to play cards even if I went!" Mary Faith interrupted him this time. "I thought I'd go and read while the rest of you played. I'd have just as good a time as the rest of you, and I wouldn't bother anyone."

GOES ALONE

Kim thought that over for a moment.

"No, that wouldn't do," he decided. "You'd be just a wet blanket, sitting there by yourself, refusing to take a drink or enter into the spirit of things . . . If you're not going to go and behave yourself like a human being you'd better stay here."

He took out his bill-fold and took a $10 note from it. Then, with a grin, he handed her the bill-fold.

"That's all I'm going to take with me," he said, pocketing the $10. "When I've lost that I'll leave. . . . Ten dollars are all those sharks are going to get from me this night, my girl."

It was long after midnight when he came home. Mary Faith was in bed and he did not turn on the light in the room when he came in. She heard him stumble against a chair. Then he sat down heavily on the side of the bed.

"You can turn on the light, Kim. I'm awake," she said.

He turned it on and stood, blinking at her, in the sudden white radiance. His hat was on the back of his head and his overcoat was thrown wide open. He took it off and Mary Faith saw that he had only a vest under it.

"Where's your coat?" she asked him sharply, and he looked down at himself and began to smile sheepishly.

"I took it off while we were playing poker," he explained, "and I must have left it at the Maldons'. Don't worry about it, Mary Faith. Jack'll bring it down to the office in the morning."

He was shaking all over. "Cold, isn't it?" he asked. "Cold as Greenland!"

OVERSLEEPS

"You're cold," she said. "You hop into bed and I'll get you something hot to drink."

In the kitchen she heated some milk and filled a hot water bottle. When she came back into the bedroom he was sound asleep, and his mother was tucking an extra blanket around his shoulders. She looked at Mary Faith, and spoke to her in a whisper.

"He's been drinking," she said. "He's just like his father before him—too fond of a good time. How many times his father came home to me just like this! I got tired of it after a while and so I left him."

She started out of the room. "You'll get tired of it, too." She threw the words over her shoulder as she went.

Kim slept until 11 o'clock the next morning, although Mary Faith went to his room three times and did her best to wake him up. When he finally did get up he showed no ill effects of the night before. His eyes were clear and his skin was fresh and ruddy.

He sang "I've Been Working on the Railroad" as he took his shower, and he ate his usual large breakfast, taking his own time about it.

"It's almost noon, Kim," Mary Faith said to him when he had finished and was opening the morning paper. "Don't you think I ought to call up the office and tell them that you're on your way? They'll be wondering where you are, won't they?"

Kim glanced at her over the top of the paper, his eyes narrowed. "What are you trying to do? Nag me out of the house?" he asked. "No, you don't have to call up the office and tell them anything. I'm still capable of running my own business even if I am married!"

Mary Faith did not answer him. She left and went back into the bedroom and began to put it into order . . . Kim was just like a spoiled child sometimes, she reflected later, when he was gone and she was washing the breakfast dishes.

For instance, he was always sulky if anyone looked at the morning paper before he did. He didn't like to see it when it had been opened and "rumpled up," so he said.

Then there was the matter of the bathroom. He let it be clearly understood that he wanted to have the use of it at any time between half past seven and half past eight. And when he walked out of it, the walls and floor would be running with water because he always forgot to draw the shower curtain, and his pajamas would be lying in a corner along with the wad of wet bath towels that he had used.

But that sort of thing did not worry Mary Faith in the least. To pick up after Kim was part of her job as a good wife, and she did it cheerfully.

Every Monday morning she and Mrs. Farrell did the washing, and every Tuesday Mary Faith did the ironing alone.

"I like to iron," she told her mother-in-law. "I like the nice warm smell of the iron and the way it leaves a nice smooth trail behind it as it goes—and besides, think of the money we're saving!"

Mrs. Farrell had been sending the washing out to a laundry that had charged anywhere from $3 to $5 a week for doing it.

Synopsis

Mary Faith gave up her position as secretary to Mark Nesbit when Kim Farrell sets their wedding date. His attitude changes when his mother objects, and the engagement is broken. Heartbroken, Mary Faith returns to her office. Mark, taken ill, has Mary Faith driven to his country home daily for two weeks. He tells her of his love for her. Mary Faith meets Kim with a girl. Next morning, Kim calls at Mary Faith's boarding house. He assures here of his love and proposes immediate marriage. After a hasty marriage they live their honeymoon in ecstasy. They return to town and find Kim's mother ill. Mary Faith is called a "Puritan" by Kim's friends, Claire and Jack Maldon, at a Sunday night party when she refuses to play cards or dance. Kim dances with Claire.

Now Go On

"I don't like you drinking and gambling," said Mary Faith.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Evelyn Parker, "official junior reporter" of the Manor Chapter, is once more on the job. She has been confined to her home for the past couple of weeks with a bad cold. Here are the items she gathered at the meeting last Saturday:

Charlotte Greenwald, one of the most popular members of the Manor Junior Komic Club, caught a bad cold last week, which has developed into pneumonia. Every member present at the meeting Saturday hoped for her speedy recovery and sent her Christmas greetings.

Several of the feminine members of the Manor chapter have banded together, forming a separate organization of their own which will meet on some afternoon each week at some member's home, for games and sewing. This is, of course, in addition to the regular meeting at the theater each Saturday. Those forming the club are, Jean Tenebaum, Myrille Nevins, Ruth Weinberger, Evelyn Parker, Elaine Breskow and Shirley Smith.

Robert Keefe will not have such a good time this Christmas vacation. He expected to get everything he asked Santa for, but he will not be able to play and hop around much with his new toys. He injured his foot the other day while out sled riding and will have to spend most of his time on the couch in the living room.

Betty Kann is expected to attend the meeting Saturday for the first time in a long while. Betty was one of the honor pupils in her class and she hated to miss so much school.

The boys not to be outdone by the girls also have organized a separate club for meetings after school. They are planning to have a New Years party Saturday after the regular meeting. The members are: Lester Berlin, Irving Toten-Totenfield, Burton Bennett, Arthur Ragow, Donald Levine, Gerald Broudy and Henry Auner. The boys are looking for a name for their club. Any suggestions girls?

Jack Goldstein, popular grand jester of the club is rapidly reaching man's estate. He received a new suit for Christmas with long trousers. And was he the proud boy!

The Grigg's Club held a Christmas party Tuesday. Among those present were: Leonard Fischler, Natalie Josephs, Bernice Arnheim, Betty Sachs, Milton Morris, Eleanor Oshry and Harold Cohen.

Earl Poit attended the meeting Saturday for the first time since his automobile accident. Everyone was glad to see him and Manager Joe Blowitz too him to the stage and made him take a bow.

Here's a lucky member, Little Jean Campbell went to New York with her parents for the Christmas holidays.

We Made It Nice For Posterity Again

The patriotic citizen wants to know how much beer he will have to drink in order to do his flag and nation a service.

If the tax on a quart is a dime should he drink a pint or a heroic gallon?

Well, we consider that an individual question. It will be as local a problem as your hat. Never tip it to strangers.

We consider beer for its food and budget values. You can absorb a meal while balancing the budget and losing your own equilibrium.

Once again we assure you that there will be nothing compulsory about it.

All we can say about beer is what the man said when he ate the broccoli. If you don't like it, don't rap it.

There will always be wets and drys in this patchwork of sovereign communities. That's our motto at all times. An aye for an aye and a toot for a toot. We shall not spend huge sums of public money in an effort to liquidate the sandblasted Sahara.

It may not be reform. But it is economical. And that's civic improvement. There is nothing new in the liquor controversy. Pennsylvania had a whisky rebellion way back around 1820 and a lot of the Keystone State veterans aren't home from that war yet. They've been chasing moonshiners in the Kentucky hills since antebellum days. The boys lose a race once in a while, but not when they're going downhill in a northwest breeze.

Nobody is foolish enough to claim that beer will stop crime. But the drys were silly enough to insist that prohibition would eliminate it. Were they right? You can take that standing vote on one foot and win by a No. 10 shoe.

All we know is that prohibition was the incubator of many a bad egg. It was a beautiful thought that curdled on the vine. But it still has its benevolent usage. It will teach future generations to look before they leap. And to telephone ahead for reservations before they do either.

We are glad we tried prohibition. It was a lesson in evasion, capering and skullduggery. We stood it off for 12 years and made the world safe for posterity once again. That's about the sixteenth time we did that since 1914.

QUICKEST WAY TO KNOCK COLDS

Feel Like A New Person Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL; to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system and you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now for a few cents. Way it works will surprise you.

AN EXCELLENT IDEA

WASHINGTON. — His eyes watery from long hours spent reading the report of the U. S. Committee on the Costs of Medical Care, Congressman Horace Frisby last night ran all the way to the White House and rapped in vain for admittance.

"Pshaw," said Frisby to the reporters who were everywhere, "I wanted to give birth to an idea with the President in attendance. I learn, from hard work, clean living and study of the report of the U. S. C. on the C.' of M. C., that my fellow Americans are spending $360,000,000 a year for patent medicines. Why wouldn't it be a good idea for the government to take a bottle of each and every remedy, and mix thoroughly? Obviously, the merger of all remedies would contain a little of everything that is beneficial to the Forgotten Man. And if he will pay $360,000,000 a year for it, we can balance the budget and feel a lot better in a day or two."

Patriotic 'Buy American' Policy Means Jobs for America's Idle Workers

THE REASONING which underlies the "BUY AMERICAN" movement, already spreading rapidly through the country, is simple and cogent.

He who runs may read. It is unanswerable. Naturally it makes instant appeal to a sensible and good-hearted people, such as we undoubtedly always have been and still are.

To many of us prosperity is a mysterious thing.

It comes, it vanishes. When we have it, we are apt to abuse it, waste it, kill it. When it is gone, we sit with morose submission waiting for its return.

This is foolish. PROSPERITY HAS ITS RULES, like everything else. If we would have it, we must study it. We cannot afford to ignore what destroys it. We cannot neglect to guard and tend the sources whence it comes.

IT RESTS UPON BUSINESS, which is the production and vending of goods.

IT ORIGINATES WITH THE WORKERS—with the earning of wages through the purchase and consumption of goods. The wage fund is its foundation.

WHEN GOODS ARE NOT BOUGHT, their further PRODUCTION CEASES. When production ceases, THE WORKERS ARE LAID OFF. A worker without work is without wages. He cannot be a purchaser. He is no longer a consumer.

It is thus that American production shrinks, American business contracts, American prosperity declines.

The worker soon becomes an unwilling dependent upon public and private relief. Money devoted to relief is withdrawn from productive use.

And so the area of stoppage, recession and contraction spreads and we have a general condition of depression and distress.

CANNOT WE BE MADE TO SEE THAT THE WAY TO STOP THIS BALEFUL SEQUENCE OF CAUSE AND EFFECT IS TO APPLY OUR PURCHASING POWER TO THE RESUSCITATION OF THE AMERICAN MARKET?

The aggregate of individual purchases becomes a stream. The stream becomes a flood, and pretty soon is heard the ring of hammers and the whirl of looms—the march of the unemployed back to the deserted mills and the silent factories.

IT IS PROSPERITY'S MARCH—OUR PROSPERITY, the prosperity of everyone of us, started by means which each of us possesses, and which today, through the purchase of goods imported from abroad and made by workmen other than our own, we are casting away.

WE HAVE restricted immigration until it has virtually ceased. We have done this to preserve American employment and to make sure that our workers are not displaced from their jobs by competing immigrant labor.

But what good is this to the American workman if the product of his labor is a drug on the market, owing to our willingness to patronize foreign industry to the sacrifice of our own?

His job is lost—just the same. True, we have not permitted the foreign workman to enter THIS country, but we keep him steadily at work in his OWN.

The product of his work, if we buy it, is just as ruinous a competitor with our workman, and as successful a rival for his job, as if we had permitted the alien in person to pass our immigration barriers.

It has been well said that the HOME MARKET OF A COUNTRY IS AS SACRED AS ITS SOIL.

BOTH ALIKE MUST BE PROTECTED FROM INVASION, AND BOTH ALIKE MUST BE DEFENDED FROM WITHIN.

We can only do this by loyalty to ourselves—to our labor, to our merchants, to our industries.

* * *

"BUY AMERICAN" is the plainest duty which presents itself to America at this critical time. It is the duty of each individual American—FOR HIS COUNTRY'S SAKE, FOR HIS OWN SAKE, AND FOR HIS BROTHER'S SAKE.

England sees it. She is up and doing.

Her shopkeepers are slow and unwilling to present imported goods to the attention of a customer. The merits of the British article are brought to the fore. A purchaser, making inquiry for the imported and competing equivalent of a domestic product, encounters an "immediate sales resistance" on the part of the British shopkeeper.

Are we less patriotic than the British? Are we less intelligent?

COME, LET US PLAY THE PART OF SENSIBLE AMERICANS, hard-headed Yankees, if you will.

Our workmen are idle. LET'S EMPLOY THEM.

Our business languishes. LET'S REVIVE IT.

Our purchasing power is being squandered, when our country needs every dollar of it. LET'S STOP ITS WASTE AND CONSERVE IT. LET'S PUT IT TO WORK FOR AMERICA.

Let us STOP THE FLOOD OF IMPORTATION. By OUR REFUSAL TO BUY we can put an end to foreign dumping by making it unprofitable.

LET US "BUY AMERICAN" with zest and joy.

We are sure to benefit by it. Untold good will flow from it.

AND LET US BUY NOTHING ELSE.

Foreign Competition

Importations of Steel and Coal Show Why Pittsburghers Should "Buy American."

If there is any district in the United States which has special reason to favor the "Buy American" movement, it is the Pittsburgh district.

Three hundred and seventy thousand tons of foreign steel were imported into the United States last year, while our own mills were idle for lack of orders.

A delegation of Pennsylvania members of Congress called on President Hoover only a few days ago to increase the tariff on coal in order to protect this fundamental Pennsylvania industry from the competition of cheap European coal that is being shipped into this country.

Cheap foreign labor and depreciated foreign currencies are overcoming tariff barriers. The good of the country and the good of Pittsburgh demand that American products shall be bought as a matter of patriotism.

Democrats for Autonomy

The Minority Party's Legislators Promise to Help Pittsburgh to Get Home Rule.

The Democratic members of the Legislature from Allegheny County have commended themselves to the good will of the people of Pittsburgh by promising to help Pittsburghers to get home rule, refused them by the Republican organization at the last session of the General Assembly.

The Democratic legislators committed themselves at their caucus to the support of legislation which will permit Pittsburgh to adopt the city manager form of government if a majority of the citizens favor it.

The Democrats do not come out in favor of the city manager plan, but they do say that if Pittsburghers wish it they should have the right to establish it.

The Republican organization sought to deprive Pittsburgh of the privilege of self-government. The Democrats are willing to grant us that privilege.

The Primary Threatened

It Should Be Preserved That Independent Citizens May Have a Chance to Serve in Office.

Prominent Pennsylvania politicians have started a movement for the abolition of primary elections and the substitution of the old convention system of choosing party nominees.

One of them, State Senator Samuel W. Salus, of Philadelphia, says:

"The direct primary makes it possible for all sorts of fakers and fourflushers to run on the party ticket, although many of them could not get into a party convention if we were operating under the old system."

Senator Salus means that under the old system the nominees were hand-picked by the bosses, and independent citizens who refused to do the bosses' bidding did not have a chance.

The primary has its faults, but it is much to be preferred to the old way.

'Excellent Care'

Boarding Homes for Children Are Given a Clean Bill of Health by the State Welfare Department.

Often, when boarding homes for children get into the news, it is in connection with the discovery of unwholesome conditions. It is a pleasure to call attention to a report of another kind, issued by the Bureau of Children of the State Department of Welfare.

Women boarding more than one baby are required by law to obtain a state license, and the license is not granted unless the home is found on investigation to conform to specified standards. The state, after licensing such boarding homes, keeps a watchful eye on them.

Quarterly reports to the Bureau of Children show that during the past year the babies were given "excellent care;" they gained in weight and advanced in other ways.

The term "baby farm" has acquired hateful connotations. It is reassuring to know that hundreds of tots receive in some of these boarding homes as good treatment as they would receive from their own mothers.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—At a dinner the other evening, a woman novelist suddenly paused in the midst of bright talk, paled and exclaimed: "There's a cat in this house!" All her remembering years she has felt a psychological presence of felines, freezing her into stiff horror.

She was so unnerved she had to go home. It developed there was a very docile Persian locked in a room in the rear of the house. This phobia, I am told, is not uncommon. Bernhardt suffered from it and once fell swooning in front of Florian's Venice cafe when a cat jumped in her lap.

There is not the tolerance for cats there is for dogs. People like cats or dislike them thoroughly. New York has five times more cats than dogs. The majority prowl warehouse districts, but there are those pedigreed ones bringing as high as $1,500 each. Neysa McMein has the finest collection.

Every theater has its mascot cat, and on several occasions they have innocently interrupted plays by ambling across stage unconcernedly during tense moments. One of New York's best known cats was an enormous black, for years in a flower shop window next to the Hippodrome.

Ten years ago a gripping mystery play was received with high enthusiasm by critics. But did not last the week. There was a scene where a miser sat in a dark hovel surrounded by a dozen cats. It was found too late that an audience reaction to cats kept the crowd away.

Speaking of cats, Roy Howard recently got his moose in Canada. Somebody asked him what he was going to do with the antlers. He isn't certain but thinks of putting them on the family cat to give the mice an especial fright.

New York firemen train themselves to fall asleep anywhere at any time and despite interruptions of their calling there is never insomnia among them. Of all workers they sleep always on the brink of battle. At any moment clanging bells may arouse them from dreams to the reality of an inferno of flame—a house reeling scarlet against the sky. And mayhap, high above the smoke, a life in peril!

* * *

Grace Moore, going inconspicuously from musical shows to grand opera, returned to the stage with the greatest popularity she had ever known. She is another small-town girl—Jellico, Tenn.—who became a toast of the city.

Miss Moore, as I recall, made her first New York stage appearance in one of the early musical nonsenses of the Marx brothers. I remember a critic at the time wrote of her: "A slim lady with a slim part and doubtless a slim future."

* * *

Thingumabobs: Fannie Hurst has a two-pound South American monkey named "Gandhi" . . . The Allan Dwans are living in London with Dwan booked to direct many English films . . . Tullio Carminati is so sensitive he does not read dramatic reviews for a month after an opening . . . Hendrik Van Loon's favorite dish is pea soup . . . Helen Worden has finished a novel about New York . . . Mrs. Jos. A. Moore is on a trip around the world . . . Jay E. House signs letters "Green boughs fo your memory."

George White displayed vivid showmanship at the opening of his variety show. He was in the wings when the finale sprawled into a fumble. In the hurry of production it had been rehearsed but once. After a wait and with the audience in a tremble of wonder, White popped before the footlights, apologized. Then rehearsed the closing informally. After a few starts, it went through without a hitch, brought the audience to its feet and so pleased White he went into an impromptu soft-shoe dance.

* * *

And Luella Gear cannot be topped for putting over a smart line. After four sabbatical years, she returns to the stage ringing frantically for a porter in a British hotel. Finally she is asked if she rang. Insinuatingly she replies: "Well, I've been chiming a little!"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

"Love is as wide as life," I wrote.

I was thinking of a love that had made life so big in its coming; that had left life so small when it went. And of the shackled, sorrowful years when I seemed bound to a grave, though well I knew that love needn't end at a grave; that love can go out as far as we will let it go.

"Love is as wide as life!" I cried, trying to be brave.

And quick, like a hand beneath that tired arm, came someone's answer:

"YES; AND LIFE IS AS WIDE AS LOVE!"

Life is as wide as love! There's glorious measure for one's hope, a stirring challenge to one's courage.

How wide is your life going to be this coming year?

How far is your power going to reach?

How deep will your strength be, and how high your vision?

You wish that you could know, don't you?

You CAN know!

YOUR LIFE WILL BE AS WIDE AS YOUR LOVE.

YOU'LL GO AS FAR IN YOUR OWN LIFE, AS DEEP INTO OTHER LIVES, AS HIGH INTO GOD'S LIFE, AS YOU LET YOUR HEART GO.

YOU WILL LIVE AS MUCH AS YOU LOVE; NO MORE; NO LESS.

Love—that is the true measure of one's experience.

Work—that is also a measure. Success—that is another measure. Wisdom—still another.

But none of these things is a true measure; for a man can do remarkable work, achieve phenomenal success and achieve knowledge in amazing abundance, YET NEVER REALLY LIVE BEYOND THE BOUNDARIES OF HIS OWN, NARROW SELF.

AND NO MAN WHO STAYS BOUND WITHIN THE LIMITS OF HIS OWN NATURE HAS EVER REALLY LIVED.

You have not lived until you have loved.

Until you have gone out of your own heart into other hearts; until you have learned to understand and serve and pity and respect those other hearts, and in that service, forgotten your own need, you have not lived.

For, unless you have done that, you have not taken the great risks, or gone on the great adventure, seen the tall visions—and you do not know what life is all about.

These risks and adventure and visions—they are "what life is all about." Life is not about the things that lie within yourself, however rich and abundant those resources may be. It is about the things that lie outside yourself, in other lives, in different experiences—the beautiful and terrible, mysterious and powerful and infinitely varied things that lie in other lives.

So if you want to live—love. If you want to live greatly—love widely, love bravely, and do not whine at the cost.

For love and life always cost a great deal. And you begin to pay the minute you begin to love. Many a love is not happy or peaceful. Many a love is not even wise, judged by any test of prudent selfishness.

BUT EVEN THE MOST UNHAPPY LOVE IS A PROFITABLE LOVE, IF YOU GO INTO IT NOBLY AND COME THROUGH IT CLEANLY.

EVERY EXPERIENCE IN LOVING IS AN ADVENTURE IN LIVING; AND THE MORE YOU LOVE, THE MORE YOU LIVE.

How wide will your life be this next year?

As wide as your heart.

So open your heart and let yourself go out—and out—and out—and out! The trail will go far, and the going will be rough; but it will always lead you deeper into life.

And somewhere, at some turning, you will suddenly come upon God.

10 Prosperity Policies For American Patriots

The following letter from William Randolph Hearst to his editors was published in the Hearst newspapers of December 27, 1932:

Please campaign vigorously for the following patriotic policies and try to express and crystallize popular sentiment for the information of the incoming administration and for the best benefit of the nation:

1—Buy American and spend American. See America first. Keep American money in America and provide employment for American citizens.

2—Encourage Pan-American reciprocity, consuming Pan-American raw materials and opening the markets of North and South America to our manufactured products, while providing work for our unemployed.

3—Develop our merchant marine to serve our trade in times of peace and supplement our Navy in time of war. The building and manning of ships makes jobs for the jobless.

4—Encourage American air fleets to cover our country and connect us more intimately with other countries of North and South America. The more enterprise, the more work, and the more work, the more prosperity.

5—Encourage our railroads to make transcontinental extensions and transcontinental combinations and to co-operate with steamship lines to connect our industry with world markets. The more industry, the more employment, and the more employment, the more prosperity.

6—Complete east and west and also north and south transcontinental automobile highways, sixty feet wide, to encourage and accommodate "see America" traffic and to provide work and wages for the unemployed.

7—Complete federal flood control of Mississippi River and Colorado River and other rivers whose overflow is a menace to the lives and property of adjoining communities, thus benefiting the nation and providing work for the unemployed.

8—Complete inland waterways projects providing various sections of the country with water communication and the equivalent of sea coasts, thus knitting the nation together and providing work for the unemployed.

9—Complete all necessary developments of rivers and harbors, encouraging shipping and consequent commerce, providing work for the unemployed and stimulating the revival of prosperity.

10—Complete all possible water conservation and power development projects, increasing the wealth and resources of the nation and providing work for the unemployed.

The distribution of wealth in wages is the basis of all prosperity. Let the government inaugurate and vigorously prosecute during the period of this depression the campaign to buy in America, spend in America, see America, and keep American money in America. Then let every patriotic citizen follow the course the government inspiringly leads.

Trifles, Light as Snowflakes

As long as a woman has the last word, she doesn't care HOW hard a man slams the door behind him.

In these days of airy underthings, the line of least resistance is the clothesline.

This depression has its cheery side. Most men were good husbands, fathers and citizens before they became "prosperous" enough to run around in high-powered cars with ladies of low-powered mentality and low-geared morals.

It has been discovered, by the psychologists, that, when it comes to emotional intensity, the brunette of the species is quicker on the trigger and more deadly than the blonde.

When a girl goes to Florida for the winter and to Maine for the summer, it is not always so much for a change of climate or a change of scenery for a change of heart-interest.

One reason why a married man seldom makes any fuss about the one drawer he is allotted in the chiffonier and the two hooks he is allowed in the clothes closet is because he never intends to put his things away, anyhow.

The woman from whom a man runs away is never the "dangerous" one, against whom he is warned, but always the "nice girl" that his family picks out for him as "perfectly safe."
